The news map spots where four U. S. Phantom jets bombed a major airfield inside North Vietnam Sunday in the 71st of what American military spokesmen call "protective reaction" raids on the north this year, the U. S. Command announced today. Spokesmen said the four F4 Phantoms escorting an unarmed, camera-equipped RF4 Phantom spy jet retaliated against Communist gunners in the vicinity of the Dong Hoi Airfield, 40 miles north of the DMZ. (UPI)

Says Vietnamization Is Surpassing Goals

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of Defense Melvin R. Laird said today the Vietnamization program is succeeding better than expected with the South Vietnamese now able to "handle the military situation to an extent I did not think possible when this program began."

Laird gave an uncharacteristically optimistic picture on his return from a five-day visit to Saigon.

A Pentagon aide viewed his comments as laying the groundwork for another significant reduction in U.S. forces in Southeast Asia by President Nixon next week.

Laird described the progress made by the South Vietnamese as "indeed encouraging" and declared the Nixon administration's program of turning responsibility for the conduct of the war over to Saigon as being "on schedule or ahead of schedule in all respects."

The Defense secretary reiterated the administration's goal to reduce U.S. involvement to a small advisory mission and to then eventually phase out that force. The only exception, he said, is the President's intention to leave some military personnel in Vietnam until American war prisoners are released.

He declined to speculate on the next phase of the pullout but predicted substantial reductions in the use of American air power as the South Vietnamese air force gains strength.

However, he said that as long as American forces remain in South Vietnam, U.S. air power will be there to protect them.

He also said most Americans have been removed from the ground combat role but that some troops also would remain to protect American logistical and support forces aiding the South Vietnamese.

At a news conference at nearby Andrews Air Force Base, Laird declined to answer how large a residual force would be left behind next year. The administration is believed to be thinking of a force of about 40,000 by next summer.

President Nixon has promised an announcement next week on the size of the next withdrawals, which now average about 14,300 men a month. U.S. troop strength, now down to 191,000 is scheduled to drop to 184,000 by Dec. 1.

The Defense Secretary said the North Vietnamese were not in as strong a position now as they were a year ago and their threat to South Vietnam has been reduced. But, he cautioned, the enemy was still capable of creating some problems.

Nevertheless, he said the South Vietnamese were now capable of handling the situation to a degree "I didn't think possible when the program (Vietnamization) started."

North Vietnam Is Pounded By American Air Armada

SAIGON (AP) — A dozen U.S. fighter-bombers attacked anti-aircraft sites around North Vietnamese air bases Sunday and today and one of the strikes was 180 miles north of the demilitarized zone, the deepest penetration this year.

The U.S. Command said the attacks were carried out after the sites fired on unarmed Navy and Air Force reconnaissance planes.

Results of the bombing raids were not known and there was no damage to the three reconnaissance planes and their 12 fighter-bomber escorts, the command said. Each reconnaissance plane was escorted by four fighter-bombers.

The new strikes raised to 73 the number of raids reported by the U.S. Command inside North Vietnam this year.

A spokesman for the U.S. Command, Maj. Richard Gardner, said he had no information on the mission of the reconnaissance planes but apparently they were photographing the air bases and any North Vietnamese MIG interceptors that might be operating there.

There were no reports of any MIGs challenging the U.S. planes. Gardner said he did not know if any MIGs were sighted on the ground.

The deepest penetration was the Quan Lang Airfield, 180 miles above the DMZ and 155 miles south of Hanoi. An Air Force 1,600-mile-per-hour RF4 reconnaissance jet was fired on today over the air base by anti-aircraft guns and four of its escorts retaliated with bombs.

Meantime, the U.S. Command announced that American military strength in Vietnam dropped another 5,500 men last week to 191,000. It was the biggest weekly cut in six months.

The Command said U.S. strength was at its lowest level since December 1965 when there were 184,300 troops in Vietnam. The forces in the country last Saturday included 184,900 Army, 31,900 Air Force, 9,700 Navy, 500 Marines and 100 Coast Guard.

Another 13,000 officers and men of the U.S. 7th Fleet are on carriers and other ships operating off the coast of Vietnam, and there are 32,200 men in Thailand, most of them Air Force personnel for the air war in Indochina.

Informed sources said President Nixon in his withdrawal announcement next week is expected to announce the end of the American role in ground combat in Vietnam, with the phasing out of the last remaining American division and tactical corps headquarters.

The 101st Airborne Division and the 24th Corps, its tactical headquarters, will be pulled out of the war zone early next year, sources said. Both operate in the northern quarter of South Vietnam.

Nixon is expected to reduce American troops in the country to a transitional force of about 40,000 men, including air support, artillery, logistics, advisers and some combat battalions to protect them, sources said. The 45,000 men on 7th Fleet ships and in Thailand would not be affected, since the U.S. air war is to continue unabated.

In the air war Sunday, four U.S. Air Force jets made the 71st attack of the year inside North Vietnam.

The U.S. Command said they bombed an anti-aircraft battery near the coastal city of Dong Hoi after it fired on an unarmed reconnaissance plane they were escorting, the U.S. Command said.

A spokesman, Maj. Richard Gardner, said results of the strike 40 miles north of the demilitarized zone were not known. He added that there was no damage to the RF4 reconnaissance plane and the four F4 Phantom fighter-bombers escorting it.

Ground fighting erupted for the first time in several months near Hue, the old imperial capital in the northern part of South Vietnam.

South Vietnamese headquarters said government infantrymen backed by artillery and air strikes killed 25 enemy troops without suffering a single casualty in an engagement 2½ miles southwest of Hue.

Only small actions were reported elsewhere in the country, continuing a lull of several weeks.

Close Vote On Prayers Predicted

WASHINGTON (AP) — A close vote, with both sides predicting victory, faces the House today on a proposed constitutional amendment designed to specifically permit prayers in public schools.

It will require a two-thirds majority to pass the amendment, which is what makes the issue in doubt. A solid majority for it exists in the House, but it might not be big enough.

Should the amendment pass the House it still would have to get through the Senate by a two-thirds vote and be ratified by the legislatures of 38 states before going into effect.

Major church organizations and the legal community have mounted a strenuous campaign against the amendment, charging it would endanger religious freedom by involving the state in religion.

Supporters of the amendment say it is needed to restore the practice of prayers in the public schools which was widely followed before a 1962 Supreme Court ruling that banned state-imposed prayers.

There have been efforts in the House ever since 1962 to get a vote on a constitutional amendment to nullify the court ruling, but this is the first one to make it to the floor.

Rep. Chalmers P. Wylie, R-Ohio, got 218 members—a majority of the House—to sign a petition taking the amendment out of the Judiciary Committee, where it had been bottled up, and bring it onto the House floor.

The procedure permits only one hour's debate and bars any amendments to change the proposed language without Wylie's consent. Opponents say such limitations make it impossible to consider the amendment properly.

The amendment reads: "Nothing in this Constitution shall abridge the right of persons lawfully assembled in any public building which is supported in whole or in part through the expenditure of public funds, to participate in nondenominational prayer."

Opponents have centered much of their criticism of the amendment on the word "nondenominational." They say the major religious faiths have never been able to agree on a common prayer.

And the daily recitation of a prayer devoid of religious or spiritual content, they say, would undermine faith and cheapen religion.

Wylie has been under pressure from some of his supporters to drop "nondenominational" from his amendment and substitute the word "voluntary."

But he has resisted the pressure in the belief it would weaken his position if he opened the amendment to changes on the floor.

Powell In Promise Of Disposing Stocks

WASHINGTON (AP) — Lewis F. Powell Jr. testified today that, if confirmed by the Senate as a Supreme Court Justice, he will dispose of stocks in companies likely to be involved in litigation or disqualify himself from sitting in cases in which he has an interest.

Before taking the witness chair at the Senate Judiciary Committee's hearing on his nomination, the Richmond, Va., lawyer had submitted a financial statement disclosing he owns more than $1 million worth of stocks and bonds.

Sen. Birch Bayh, D-Ind., asked him if he felt the law and the American Bar Association's canon of ethics should be strictly construed in respect to conflicts of interest.

"I certainly do," replied Powell, a former president of the ABA and rated by its committee on the federal judiciary as qualified in an exceptional degree to serve on the Supreme Court.

Prior to his testimony, Powell said in an interview he was prepared to place his security holdings in a blind trust or do whatever else was necessary and proper to avoid possible conflicts of interest.

However, he testified he believed a blind trust would be of little assistance since, he said, proposed new canons of ethics being drafted by the ABA suggest a judge has an affirmative duty to determine his holdings.

He testified his security holdings are "a troublesome problem" but that he was prepared to dispose gradually of stocks in companies likely to be involved in litigation before the Supreme Court where this can be done without substantial loss.

He said he understood this would be in line with the code of ethics being prepared by the ABA.

Powell said, however, that the principal stockholding of himself and members of his family was acquired from his father as a gift many years ago and they couldn't dispose of it.

He identified this company as Sperry and Hutchinson, in which his financial statement disclosed he owns 8,462 shares currently worth nearly $320,000.

Powell said that in a case involving this company he would have to disqualify himself.

Already pending before the Supreme Court is a case which pits the Federal Trade Commission against S & H in a dispute over the company's regulation of its trading stamps.

Federal law requires judges to disqualify themselves in cases in which they have a substantial interest. The canons of the

Philippines Election Produces Violence

MANILA (AP) — The death toll neared 200 today as Filipinos elected eight senators and 15,093 local officials in the most violent election in their history.

Sixteen election-related deaths were reported by noon, raising some unofficial tabulations to 178 since the campaign started. Officially the death toll was put at 141 through Sunday night, but all news media reported much higher figures. The toll was more than double that in the most violent previous campaign, in 1967, when 75 persons were killed.

More than 50,000 troops and reserves were posted throughout the islands to combat violence and intimidation and guard ballot boxes.

The government took out life insurance policies for volunteer keepers of the polls, which opened under clear skies over most of the archipelago. Officials estimated that more than 80 per cent of the approximately 11 million registered voters would cast ballots.

In addition to the eight senate seats, or one third of the upper house, the voters were choosing governors of all 66 provinces, mayors of the 1,490 cities and towns, including Manila, and other local officials.

Except for the Senate races, the issues were generally localized. But both President Ferdinand E. Marcos' ruling Nationalista party and the opposition Liberal party waged active campaigns on national issues in an attempt to create a party vote.

Marcos, who won a second four-year term in 1969, said the Communists were supporting the Liberal candidates and that the election would be a referendum for his programs of anticommunism and peaceful revolution.

The Liberals campaigned hard on issues such as inflation, pointing out that the price of rice is more than four times higher than when Marcos took office. They accused the administration of corruption and of creating a climate of violence.

Election officials said they hoped to have complete results by late Thursday. Decisions in the senate races and the major mayoral and gubernatorial contests may be known by early Wednesday.

outdated ... I am here to tell you ... that as a Lutheran who went to the Vatican Council, I think that this is the time, above all, that we should observe Reformation, because if we don't we're going to pull the rug out from under the very fine people who are trying to change things as Martin Luther tried to change more than 400 years ago when nobody would listen to him."

Dr. Hoffmann continued, "When I got back from the Vatican Council there were some good Missouri Synod Lutherans who asked me whether there had been any changes at the Vatican. And I said, 'Yes, things have changed. This Lutheran went to the meeting in Rome and came back alive.'"

Referring to the Catholic-Protestant dialogue he said, "We're talking to some people today whom we haven't been able to talk to for four centuries or so. And that bothers some people. But Martin Luther would have loved to see this day."

Dr. Hoffmann went on to explain that the basic principle behind Reformation was getting into a right relationship with God, "through grace and not by works."

"There has never been a substitute to that personal commitment," Dr. Hoffmann emphasized.

Following the service, Dr. Hoffmann answered questions about some current issues in the church.

Q. Dr. Hoffmann, what are your views on the ecumenical movement?

A. I would say it is truly ecumenical to talk together but not to ignore the issues that have arisen through the centuries and that are still arising today. We need to meet them head on. It seems to me that this is really the ecumenical spirit — not to agree to disagree but to face, with Christian kindness, the differences that do exist and try to resolve them on the basis of the word of God.

Q. What is the present state of the ecumenical movement?

A. I think the movement is in a kind of an eddy and nothing very much is happening. Maybe, it's waiting for something to happen ... waiting for the Spirit of God to work.

I have a feeling that the Spirit of God has something in store for the church we haven't ever dreamed of yet. I wouldn't be surprised at all that he's going to do it the way he has always done it — through the word of God. That's how the Spirit works.

Q. You were an observer at the second Vatican Council. What significant changes do you see within the Catholic Church?

A. There has been a significant breakthrough in the openness with which

Dr. Hoffmann Addresses Gathering Here

By P. C. THOMAS
Democrat-Capital Staff Writer

An estimated 2,500 persons heard Dr. Oswald Hoffmann deliver a sermon on the Reformation theme in the Smith-Cotton gymnasium Sunday afternoon. It was one of the largest religious events held in Sedalia in recent years.

Dr. Hoffmann is the speaker on the Lutheran Hour radio program, which reaches an estimated 40 million listeners.

The address and worship service was arranged by the Sedalia Circuit of the Lutheran Church-Missouri Synod in commemoration of the 474th anniversary of the Reformation. Lutheran churches observed Oct. 31 as Reformation Sunday.

Dr. Hoffmann answered the question on why in this ecumenical age one must observe the anniversary of the Reformation. "Some think it's kind of

Tribute To Luther

"... My conscience is captive to the Word of God. Here I must take my stand. God help me. Amen." Those words, uttered by Martin Luther more than four centuries ago, echoed in the Smith-Cotton School gymnasium Sunday afternoon as Dr. Oswald Hoffmann, speaker on The Lutheran Hour radio program, addressed nearly 2,500 area residents. He used 1 Peter 5:12 as the text. The Reformation service was held under the auspices of the Sedalia Circuit's 11 congregations of the Lutheran Church-Missouri Synod. This was Dr. Hoffmann's first visit to Sedalia. The Rev. Melvin R. Geffert, pastor of Sedalia's St. Paul's Lutheran Church, was the liturgist. A brass ensemble and a choir from the St. Paul's College, Concordia, provided special music.

DEAR POLLY — Laura can remove the thick crust of lime from her aluminum teakettle by filling it with water and then adding three or four tablespoons of cream of tartar, and boiling for a short time. Polly's Problem

DEAR POLLY — I find it impossible to get iron-on patches to stay on my son's trousers. They last through one or two washings, then come off whether they are applied to the inside or the outside. The brand of the patch does not seem to matter nor the type of detergent used in the laundry. I usually use a bio-degradable one and now wonder if this could be a problem peculiar to wash-and-wear fabrics. I would appreciate some information. — SANDY

DEAR POLLY — For an easy clean-up wastebasket to use when cleaning indoors or out, take the leg stand of a TV tray and a plastic garbage can liner. Fold liner over top of stand, tape folded-over edge of liner to legs with masking tape. (Polly's note — Clip clothespins could be used, too.) When bag is full remove tape, twist top of liner and trash is neatly bagged. — JUNE

DEAR POLLY — My Pet Peeve concerns boxed chocolates with brand names. How can we be sure they are fresh? WAFB Citizenship Class Entertains BPW Group

"Our Friends From Around the World" was the theme of the November dinner meeting of the Sedalia Business and Professional Women's Club. The program was arranged by the World Affairs Committee and was introduced by Mrs. Mildred Goddard and Miss Opal O'Brian.

Fourteen members of the citizenship class at Whiteman Air Force Base introduced themselves and told of their native countries. Attending were Matsuko Turner, Miyoko Befort and Sadako Grossi, Japan; Toyoko Watanabe, Okinawa; Pam Sutton, Maria Cozort, Marisol Dykwell and Maria Teresa Warren, Spain; Mgi Huy Schroeder and Pi Lein Reedy, Taiwan; Kim Kesterson, Korea; Nangnoi Schwanke, Thailand; and Venus Meyette, Philippines.

Mrs. Goddard told how the citizenship class was started and the members, dressed in costumes from their countries, presented the program. A Japanese tea ceremony was given as well as a Spanish flamenco dance. Pam Sutton showed her naturalization papers and explained the test she had to take to become a U.S. citizen.

Dolls from several countries were shown and slides from Thailand were presented.

Nangnoi Schanker thanked the group following the program.

A medley of foreign songs was presented by Mrs. Donald Barnes, who not only sang in Italian, French and German, but explained the musical characteristics of each country to the group. She was accompanied by Mrs. Dorothy Bass, pianist.

The business meeting was presided by Mrs. Wayne Hood, president.

Major Marjorie Weber gave the invocation and guests introduced by Mrs. Emory Bowman included Mrs. Waunita Karbinas, Mrs. Carl Raines, Mrs. Colleen Mather, Ruth Seifert, Marie Grady, Louise McKee, Lulu Knight, Ann Hackman, JoAnn Brown, June Brown, Dorothy Riley and Mrs. John Snodgrass.

Hostesses for the evening were Mrs. Donald Keller, Mrs. Martha Deck and Mrs. Clyde Waggoner.

Overweight Friend Damages Furniture

Dear Ann Landers: How does one tell a 300-pound friend that he is wrecking your furniture? When he comes to our home he heads straight for one of two easy chairs and needlessly to say, he is bad news for anything that is put together with springs. We have tried, tactfully, of course, to offer other chairs, but he declines. Both easy chairs were repaired recently and the upholstery man said he reinforced them so solidly that an elephant could sit on them and they would not break down. Last night our guest was here and this morning the springs are sagging again. What can we do? Remember, this is a dear person and we do NOT want to offend him. Thanks a lot. — Too Much Friend

Dear Too Much: Buy a special chair for the fellow and have a little plaque made with his name on it. When he comes to visit, escort him to HIS chair, purchased especially for him, and he could not possibly refuse to sit in it.

Electrical Reducers Might Become Deadly

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

Dear Dr. Lamb — In the paper you mentioned the use of electrical devices to strengthen the abdominal muscles and how dangerous they were. You suggested they be discarded immediately.

Lamb

All I am interested in knowing is what kind of device — I have a Relax-a-Cizer and was wondering if you meant this particular machine. Dear Reader — Many people have written in about this since I mentioned the young man of San Antonio, Tex., who was killed by electrocution with one of these devices. I usually do not mention brand names but will make an exception. The Federal Trade Commission has banned the Relax-a-Cizer from public sale as a health hazard. This device and any other similar device that uses electricity to stimulate the muscles to contract for the purposes of slimming the waist have been banned. I think the death of the healthy young man mentioned above should be adequate explanation for the FTC action.

The safest and best way to fight the battle of the bulge is with proper exercise and a sensible diet to prevent obesity. I repeat, throw away or turn in any electrical devices you have purchased for this purpose.

I am not talking about vibrators — these do not deliver an electric current to the muscles. The vibrators might be relaxing but will not do much for muscle tone or weight reduction. The simple truth is there is no short cut to prevention of obesity and treating pendulous pots.

Dear Dr. Lamb — You wrote that menstruation is unusual at 57. I will soon be 62 and I still menstruate, two to three times a year. It stopped for six years, now for four years I have menstruated six days each time.

Dear Reader — You are definitely unusual. I hope you have had a checkup by your doctor to be sure that it is menstruation. Your story is so unusual that I would like to repeat again, that any woman in middle life who has stopped menstruating and starts bleeding again should have an immediate examination by her doctor. Let your doctor decide if it is important or not after he has had a chance to examine you.

Dear Dr. Lamb — I am 12 years old and have an undesirable habit of slumping. Is there anything I can do to break the habit besides wearing braces?

Dear Reader — Wanting to be half the battle. Braces usually are not helpful in correcting posture unless there is a skeletal problem that needs correction. Muscles supported by a brace become weaker and less effective. One of the best aids to good posture is a good all-round exercise program. If your muscles are strong enough, you will be less likely to slump. Much of the rest is habit.

Start a regular set of exercises to strengthen the muscles between your shoulder blades and the muscles along your back. If you have a physical education teacher or gym teacher, ask for help in developing a good set of exercises.

Eleven Killed In Accidents

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

At least 11 persons were killed in traffic accidents over the weekend in Missouri.

Killed Sunday: Brent Sullivan, 2, of Waco, Mo., in a one-car accident on Missouri 171 about eight miles north of Joplin.

Candy Light, 14, of Orrick, when the car in which she was riding collided with a Norfolk and Western freight train in Orrick.

Winfred Dale Wells, 29, St. Joseph, in a two-car collision on an Andrew County road north of St. Joseph.

Barbara Stanley, 22, of Aurora, in a one-car accident on U.S. 60 eight miles east of Granby in southwest Missouri.

Mrs. Addie C. Price, 55, and Freda Anderson, 32, both of Springfield, were killed Saturday in a collision of a car and a pickup truck in Springfield.

Otis Eugene Littrell, 23, of Smithville, Mo., a junior at the University of Missouri-Columbia, died when he was struck by an auto as he hitchhiked along Interstate 70 near Columbia.

Killed Friday night: Barbara Hollett, 15, of Imperial, when her motorcycle and a car collided on Missouri 21 in Jefferson City.

William R. Hamrich, 20, of St. Louis, when his car ran off the road, struck some rocks and burst into flames near Potosi.

Louis W. Shaw, 41, of Kansas City, and an unidentified soldier stationed at Ft. Riley, Kan., when their cars collided on Interstate 70 east of Kansas City.

In Ranks

Airman Dennis D. Paxton, grandson of Mrs. Goldie R. Pettus, Cole Camp, has received his first U.S. Air Force duty assignment after completing basic training at the Air Training Command's Lackland AFB, Tex. The airman has been assigned to a unit of the Tactical Air Command at Mountain Home AFB, Idaho, for training and duty as a law enforcement specialist. He attended Cole Camp High School.

Wayne Smith, a relative of five persons killed in an attack in their Grass Valley, Calif., home Sunday, talked to newsmen outside the residence. The

No One Cares

Apathy Disturbs Father

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Denne Bozakis taught his son to play football, stay out of trouble and give his life for his country, if he must.

Ron Bozakis did all three. Denne doesn't try to hide his tears when he shows Ron's medals, awards and scrapbooks. And he doesn't try to hide his anger either.

He is disturbed because his son made the "ultimate sacrifice" but few people seem to care. He decided to make himself heard.

The 51-year-old pie salesman wrote an eight-page letter to President Richard M. Nixon. He poured out his feelings and he questioned what has happened to American values.

"My son did not want to die, but just do his duty," Bozakis wrote. "You must be willing to sacrifice when called upon." He urged Nixon not to "back down" in Vietnam.

"All I got back was a little card," he said, "a couple of lines. I'm sure Nixon didn't see it."

Now he's sent another letter to Nixon and a recorded ballad telling of 22-year-old Green Beret Staff Sgt. Ronald H. Bozakis who "fought to keep men free."

Ron was killed on his 26th and last scheduled mission. His squad was ambushed on Oct. 25, 1969.

Denne and his wife Jeanne, who have five other children, have scraped up $1,250 to have the song, "A Fearless Soldier," recorded and 2,000 copies made. Jeanne wrote the lyrics.

Weekly Visits Made to Brig

WASHINGTON (AP) — Most sailors doing time in the brig can now expect weekly visits from their skippers, who have been ordered to lend them "a sympathetic ear, sound advice" and a boost back up.

The recent order from Navy headquarters says prisoners rarely have been visited by ship and shore commanders.

"The goal of the Navy's corrections program is to restore prisoners to duty," said a directive sent worldwide.

"If this is to be achieved, it is important that commanding officers show a personal interest and take an active part in the effort to rehabilitate individual offenders under their command."

A commanding officer can contribute significantly to salvaging a prisoner "by visiting him and providing a sympathetic ear, sound advice, and whatever administrative assistance he can provide," the order said.

Accordingly, Navy headquarters decreed, "When circumstances permit, the commanding officer or his designated representative shall arrange to visit weekly the individuals under his command who are in confinement."

Disciplinary officials said the Navy's confinement rate is at the lowest level in history, 1.8 per 1,000 enlisted men. There were 904 men in brig or correctional centers as of Sept. 30.

Along with other Navy reforms, service leaders have been exploring new prison approaches far removed from the harsh bread-and-water philosophy of many years ago.

The Navy plans to open a new retraining command, probably in Orlando, Fla., senior officers said. Those men found suitable will get from six to eight weeks of special retraining before being returned to duty. During this period, they will be under what is called "minimum custody," living in their own barracks rooms.

The Navy also is stressing "base paroles," under which an inmate with a good brig record may be allowed to work on the base all day like any other sailor. Sleeping and eating apart from other prisoners, these base parolees also enjoy more TV watching and other privileges.

BULLETIN

A student at Smith-Cotton High School received lacerations to his chin in a hit and run accident at Ninth and Massachusetts at 1:20 p.m. Monday.

The student, whose identity was not available at presstime, was taken to Bothwell Hospital, treated and released to the care of a physician.

Sedalia police said that the car involved in the accident is believed to be a turquoise Pontiac.

Hoffmann

Roman Catholics are now permitted to conduct conversation with Protestants. This was not possible 10 years ago. Today Roman Catholics are much more open to discussion of differences and I can say things to Roman Catholics today which would have gotten me a black eye 10 years ago.

We're finally beginning to have a situation where we can discuss doctrine, which was really what Reformation was all about — not a political movement, not an economic movement, but a doctrinal movement having to do with the theology of the church. This hasn't been possible for four centuries. It's a great thing.

Q. What are your views on the charismatic movement?

A. I think there are charismatic gifts but I think that in the history of the church no charismatic gift has been proved to be a true manifestation of the Spirit unless it was employed for the edification of the church.

In other words, not to divide the church, but to edify it. And when people parade their gifts, this divides the church. I have no doubt that people have special gifts of the Spirit but they are the kind that you don't parade.

My feeling is that the Charismatic Movement is not going to be a reformation movement in the church. It may recall the church to some of its principles — the gospel and the work of the Spirit.

Q. What do you think of the "Jesus movement"?

A. There again, I think it has something authentic. The Jesus people do see Jesus as real and some of them have overcome personal problems by sheer faith in Jesus Christ. But here again, they'll have to learn that emotionalism is not enough. You need the deepening knowledge of the Bible with it.

"As the Bible puts it, 'growing in grace and in the knowledge of Jesus Christ,' is important.

Q. Many of the Jesus people spurn formalized practices of the church. Is this a healthy trend?

A. The general tendency of movements like this is to become "churchy" as they go along. They sometimes start out as a protest against the church and some of them turn out to be more ecclesiastical than the church they were originally opposed to.

Q. Dr. Hoffmann, you were chairman of the 1969 U.S. Congress on Evangelism in Minneapolis. What was the most significant outcome of the congress?

A. At the congress, there was a clear and ringing call to genuine faith in Jesus Christ as he is found in the holy scriptures. Absolutely no apology was made for the New Testament.

At the congress His people resolved that they are going to engage in a mission of love.

Savings Bond Sales Given For September

Sale of U.S. Savings Bonds in Pettis County during September totaled $53,203, bringing the accumulative sales this year to $504,761, or 74 per cent of the county's 1971 goal.

Donald W. Douglas, state chairman of the Missouri Savings Bonds Committee, reported that statewide September sales totaled $10,923,347, increasing the accumulative yearly sales to more than $111 million, or 79 per cent of the state quota.

Benton County has already exceeded its goal, with $189,532 sold through Sept. 30. Henry County has achieved 57 per cent of its goal, with $412,556 sold. Johnson County has realized 82 per cent of its goal, Monticau County 95 per cent, and Saline, 57 per cent.

Planning Retirement From Military Life

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — "I have been shot five times and bayoneted three times, none of which was as painful to me as the decision I must now announce," said Lt. Col. Anthony Herbert in revealing plans to quit the Army early next year.

Herbert, the most highly decorated U.S. enlisted soldier of the Korean War, revealed Sunday he would submit a request today for retirement because of alleged harassment resulting from his charges that fellow officers covered up Vietnam atrocities.

"Thus I end a career," said the 41-year-old native of Herminie, Pa., who has spent 22 years in the service. The retirement statement was issued through his civilian attorney, Morris Brown of the American Civil Liberties Union.

Herbert cited what he termed "intolerable" stress on his family and personal harassment by the Army as factors contributing to his retirement. He said he is eligible to retire Feb. 29, 1972.

In Washington, the Pentagon declined to comment.

Herbert has declined to speak personally with the news media recently because, his attorneys say, he is under the impression the Army has prohibited him from doing so without written permission from superiors.

A firm denial of the charges of harassment and "muzzling" was voiced last Thursday by Col. Tom Reid, deputy commanding officer at Ft. McPherson where Herbert is stationed.

But Brown said Herbert "has made every effort to obtain within the Army the right to speak freely" and has been "repeatedly denied that right."

"The attempts—thus far successful—to silence Col. Herbert have included the cancellation of previously granted permission to appear on national television; the cancellation of leave time granted and the refusal to grant him a portion of his 63 days earned leave time; and now the requirement of Pentagon level approval of interviews to which he is willing to submit."

Herbert's feud with the Army flared openly last March after he accused Maj. Gen. John W. Barnes and Col. J. Ross Franklin of dereliction of duty and misprision (concealment of a felony) for allegedly failing to pass on reports of what Herbert called incidents of murder and torture of civilians in Vietnam in 1969.

Charges against Franklin were dismissed last July and those against Barnes were dropped when Maj. Gen. Roland M. Gleszer, commander of the military district of Washington, concluded "the available evidence did not establish the commission of alleged offenses."

Powell

ABA, Powell noted, are not legally binding on the judiciary, but he said he would adhere to their guiding principles.

Powell, nominated by President Nixon to succeed the late Hugo L. Black on the court, made a brief appearance before the committee last Thursday when he was presented by Virginia's senators. The state's entire congressional delegation was on hand, along with seven past presidents of the ABA, to lend their support.

However, testimony by Powell was delayed until today by two days of questioning Asst. Atty. Gen. William H. Rehnquist, nominated by Nixon for a second vacancy on the court created by the retirement of John M. Harlan.

Once Powell's testimony is completed, the committee plans to hear from spokesmen for the Leadership Conference on Civil Rights, Americans for Democratic Action, and other outside witnesses.

Committee action on the nominations announced by Nixon on Oct. 21, appears possible before the end of the week. The Supreme Court has rearranged its schedule awaiting the filling of the two vacancies.

Although Nixon described both nominees as judicial conservatives, liberals in and out of Congress have concentrated their opposition on Rehnquist, who has served in the Justice Department as counsel for Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell and the President.

The ABA's 12-member committee on the federal judiciary, in a unanimous report last week, said: "Mr. Powell meets, in an exceptional degree, high standards of professional competence, judicial temperament and integrity."

The ABA committee rated both men highly qualified for the court.

New Future Is Planned For Welfare

LAKE OZARK, Mo. (AP) — Missouri's director of welfare predicted today that welfare programs for the aged, blind and disabled will be absorbed into the Social Security system by Jan. 1, 1973.

Welfare Director Proctor N. Carter made that and other predictions in a speech prepared for a meeting of the state Hospital Association.

He said benefit payments to the aged, blind and disabled will be federally financed with state supplementation.

"It is possible that the federal government will assume increased financing for these groups," Carter said, "even before they can be transferred to the Social Security system."

Carter said that within the next two or three years, "there will be a plan throughout the country which will guarantee to all welfare families with children a specified annual income, probably in the neighborhood of $3,000 a year. However, the 'working poor' (or low income families not on welfare) will probably be excluded due to the cost. This program will be fully financed by federal funds."

Day care centers will be established throughout the country, Carter said, to permit parents to work. "There will be great stress on employment of welfare recipients in either the public or private sector to reduce welfare costs," he said.

He also predicted that some form of national health insurance, operated through private industry, will ultimately replace the present medicare and medicaid programs.

Blessing the Faithful

Pope Paul VI blessed the faithful gathered in St. Peter's Square Sunday from the window of his private study in the Apostolic Palace. The pontiff said the world synod of bishops which ended Saturday was a special event destined to have a great influence on the life of the church. At left is a granite statue atop the Bernini colonnade.

For Cotton

Widow Loves Allotment

COFFEYVILLE, Kan. (AP) — A past 70 widow clings to her eight acre federal cotton allotment — the only one issued in this wheat state — because "I just love it."

Sally Gullick lives on her farm in the Bolton community northwest of Coffeyville, just above the Oklahoma border in southeast Kansas. Her farm includes other crops, such as wheat, hay, milo, other grains and some pasture land, but cotton is her first love.

"I've been around cotton all my life," Mrs. Gullick says. Five years a widow, with 18 children scattered from Colorado to Michigan, she is a native of Bristow, Okla., and the youngest of 33 children of her father and his four wives.

With the help of a hired hand, Willie Harris, and her son, Leo, who lives nearby, Mrs. Gullick plants her cotton each year, but admits she now has to leave most of the heavy work to the men. She still drives a tractor whenever needed, however.

"I'm quite bossy," she says, "so mostly I just do the bossing."

To comply with her federal certification, she plants licensed seed each year and rotates the cotton crop to a different field each year.

"I take pride in always having made my own way," Mrs. Gullick says.

She and her brothers and sisters worked in Oklahoma cotton fields throughout her youth. Married at 16, she and her husband rented a small cotton farm. During this period, she took courses in agriculture at Langston University, the first Negro college in Oklahoma.

She has lived at her present home, on a 15-acre plot, since 1944. She owns two other farms totaling 228 acres nearby, but plants crops on only 40 acres. The rest is pasture. She has around 40 head of cattle, about 29 hogs and a flock of chickens.

Every year, she hauls her cotton crop more than 100 miles to Haskell, Okla., the nearest cotton gin. She sells the cotton there, making an average of $1,000 for her crop.

This year, almost half the crop drowned out during a rainy period, but what is left, she said, "is extra good."

Mrs. Gullick explained 1,500 pounds of cotton in the boll will gin out one 550-600 pound bale of lint. This year's crop will total about three bales, she estimated.

Mrs. Gullick says she and her late husband raised as much as 100 acres of cotton a year before his death and before cotton production was limited by the federal government. Their family of 18 children, 14 by her previous marriage, helped pick the crop in those days, he says.

She is a noted cook and has prepared large meals for various organizations in nearby Independence, Kan.

"I've cooked many a meal for 86 men or more and baked as many as 45 pies for one occasion," she recalls.

Her father, M. J. Maloney, was a slave in Texas before the Civil War.

"My children trouble me to come and live with them," Mrs. Gullick says. "But I won't leave my cotton field — I just love it."

"I've worked hard all my life and done most everything to keep my kids fed and in school. And I don't owe nobody nothing."

The average family of four in the United States eats about 1,000 pounds of fruits and vegetables each year.

Honor Educators

For New Efforts

LAWRENCE, Kan. (AP) — Three professors at the University of Kansas have been honored as outstanding progressive educators.

Recipients of the Honor for the Outstanding Progressive Educator were John B. Branner, associate professor of journalism; Miss Elizabeth Shultz, assistant professor of English; and Arno F. Knapper, associate professor of business.

The award, presented at half-time of the Kansas-Colorado football game Saturday, is voted annually by members of the senior class and includes a $100 gratuity.

It was the first time more than one award was given.

Debating Synod's Value

VATICAN CITY (AP) — The Roman Catholic Synod of Bishops produced two lengthy documents, on "Priesthood" and "Social Justice," but did it accomplish anything of substance?

Or was it a flop, as some of the bishops suggested in a flurry of self-criticism at the closing of the five-week session Saturday.

"The Synod cannot be a little Vatican Council," said Leon-Etienne Cardinal Duval, archbishop of Algiers and one of three presidents of the meeting.

"In the future we shouldn't take on so much heavy material. It should proceed in a simpler way."

Bishop John Gran of Oslo asserted that the bishops were going home "with empty hands."

Many of the 209 delegates questioned the rush to produce full-blown documents instead of a series of resolutions or suggestions for Pope Paul VI. Others said there should have been a minority as well as a majority report.

What did the Synod do in the way of giving advice to the Pope, its prime purpose?

The document on the priesthood upheld the status quo except for a strong minority vote of 87 in favor of ordination of married men. However, the document, did not come to grips with the wave of priestly defections in the West nor with the so-called identity crises expressed by many priests.

The document on social justice counseled almost nothing that the Pope himself had not already urged for his church. In fact, some observers thought it much more timid than Pope Paul's encyclical "Populorum Progressio" issued four years ago.

The only major point that did not duplicate Pope Paul's speeches and writings was a call for church backing of conscientious objection to war.

The document made no mention of such controversial and innovative suggestions during the debate as making public all church bookkeeping, including the Vatican's; setting up a center backed by the church to work on solving social problems and selling the Vatican's art works, expensive chalices and other sacred objects to help feed the hungry.

By contrast, the Synods of 1967 and 1969 offered more evident results. The first led to changes in the rules for marriage of a Catholic and a non-Catholic, and to the establishment of an international theological commission to advised the Pope constantly. The second spelled out the principal of collegiality, or the sharing by the bishops in the Pope's decision making. It asked that a Synod be held every two years, and Pope Paul granted that.

There were these other criticisms of this Synod by its own participants:

—Too little contact between bishop's conferences before the Synod. Some proposed that regional conferences pave the way for the next Synod.

—Use of Latin impeded debate. The delegates should use modern tongues.

The simultaneous translation system sometimes broke down, and those who could not follow Latin well missed the debate. There were calls for "U.N.-trained translators" next time.

—Many bishops spoke in the general assembly because they felt they had to say something, even though others had made the same points. This took up valuable time.

—The system of a predetermined roster of speakers for each day precluded real debate.

There was no immediate rebuttal of speeches.

Nixon Requests New Public Jobs

KEY BISCAYNE, Fla. (AP) — President Nixon, nearing the end of a weekend respite here, has called on state and local authorities to "move with speed and vigor" to fill 70,000 authorized but vacant public service jobs.

About $1 billion has been available since August to create 100,000 jobs in an effort to ease unemployment. Only about 30,000 have been filled, however.

Nixon, who planned to return to Washington tonight, sent letters to 14,000 state, county and local officials to urge an aggressive approach to the program he signed into law July 2. The Florida White House made the letter public Sunday night.

Nixon wrote:

"I am sure that you share my commitment to reduce the level of unemployment in our country. Unfortunately, despite the fact that the Department of Labor made funding available almost immediately, hiring has not kept pace in some areas of the nation.

"Therefore, I urge you to move with speed and vigor to fill the job vacancies now funded in your jurisdiction."

Those hired work on state, municipal and nonprofit projects. The jobs are temporary and are intended to train workers for permanent employment in the private sector.

Nixon asked that a special effort be made to exceed a goal of assigning one-third of the jobs to veterans. He wrote:

"This nation owes a great debt to those who have served in the Vietnamese conflict and who have been returning home in increasing numbers. I have assigned the highest priority to the hiring of Vietnam veterans, and I hope that you will do the same."

The initial $1 billion for the program is allocated for the fiscal year that ends next June 30. An outlay of $1.5 billion is planned for the following book-keeping year.

Nixon spent much of Sunday afternoon swimming and relaxing on the beach on front of his Florida compound.

The President will fly to New York and Chicago Tuesday night for appearances at $500-a-plate Republican fund raising dinners.

Sedalia, Missouri 65301

Dear Dr. Bryden:

It was a pleasure to meet you and feel your enthusiasm.

It is very difficult to make any comment on the statement of Dr. Knowles, not because it is true, but because it is so general in nature. There are, however, several relevant facts which may help to clarify the situation concerning the transference of effects from plants and fruit fly to humans. First, my statement about the similarities of the genetic material, namely the DNA, in all organisms is not a theory of mine, but a fact which was first pointed out by Drs. Watson and Crick, Nobel prize winners, and also by Dr. Lederberg, another Nobel prize winner. All three of these men received the Nobel prize for Medicine for genetic work.

Another illustration of detrimental effects first showing up in plants and small animals is that of radiation effects first found in fruit fly by Dr. Muller (still another Nobel prize winner for Medicine for genetics work) and also on corn plants before the damage had been detected in man. These two materials were two of the materials on which my work was done. Still another illustration of this is that the wartime classified research on the genetic damage from mustard gas was first studied on the fruit fly and plants. These problems must, of necessity, first be found and studied on lower organisms since man cannot be an experimental subject.

It may also be of interest to note that in genetic engineering, virus DNA (the genetic material in some viruses as in all organisms) can be incorporated with the chromosomes of other organisms, whether they be plant, animal, bacteria, or even man. Virus, incidentally is neither a plant nor an animal.

As to the proposed newspaper ad, I do not feel that I could possibly endorse it, since many of the statements are either untrue, or so questionable as to make it suspect in its entirety, whether true or not.

Incidentally, for your information, although I realize that it may have sounded that way, my work was not, as implied in the newspaper article and possibly in my answer at that time, set up to find "something wrong with water fluoridation" but to find out what effects fluoride did have, and turned out finding fault with it after the work was done.

Sincerely yours,

Aly H. Mohamed

FOOD &amp; FIBER NEWS

University of Missouri Extension Centers
Henry - Johnson - Lafayette - Pettis

The use of plastic pipe has greatly increased in the past fifteen or twenty years. Its relative ease of installation and moderate cost have no doubt led to its wide acceptance. The decision on whether or not to use plastic pipe depends on your particular needs. Now, it isn't just a "yes" or "no" decision either. For there are several different types of plastic pipe on the market and each one has a set of limitations that is different than the others.

Plastic pipe is made in flexible, semi-rigid and rigid forms. In addition, it is made in several different quality ranges with various pressure ratings varying from about 60 pounds per square inch to 200 pounds per square inch or more.

Actually, the term "plastic" is no more descriptive of plastic pipe than "metal" would be for copper or galvanized pipe. Several different kinds of plastic pipe are available — each with a different chemical make-up. Some of the more readily available types are discussed below:

Polyethylene (PE) was the material used in most of the early pipe. It is generally flexible and comes in large rolls, but it can be bought in semi-rigid forms too. It can be used underground for cold water only, since it loses strength quickly as temperature rises. It has pressure ratings between 80 and 160 pounds per square inch.

Polyvinyl Chloride (PVC) is a rigid pipe and is available in pressure ranges from 50 to 315 pounds per square inch. It can be used underground or in buildings for cold water lines only. Larger sizes are sometimes used for permanent irrigation systems and this can also be used in drainage systems.

Acrylonitrile Butadiene Styrene (ABS) is a semi-rigid pipe with various pressure ratings between 80 and 160 pounds per square inch. It can be used for cold water lines and for drain lines.

Chlorinated Polyvinyl Chloride is one of the newer pipes on the market. It is rigid, and is safe for both cold and hot (180 degree) water.

Installation is fairly simple on all the types of plastic pipe. The flexible polyethylene pipe is joined with brass or nylon fittings and stainless steel clamps. The rigid types are used with fittings made from the same material and they are joined with a solvent-type cement that welds the joint together.

Advantages of plastic pipe are several. Generally, these plastic compounds are not affected by corrosive type soils. Corrosion inside the pipe is no problem. Easiest to install. Joints are easy to make. Least expensive — both in materials and installation labor.

There are limitations of Plastic Pipe. Most forms can be damaged by sharp objects — be careful when placing in trench and in back-filling. Ground hogs or rats may gnaw holes. Pipe can be flattened by excessive external pressures — however, this is seldom a problem if the line is buried to below frostline depth and water pressure is applied before the trench is back-filled.

Only CPVC type pipe can be used for hot water lines. Some pipes, particularly the flexible type may be damaged by rodents. Gas and oil may be absorbed by some plastics and cause the water to taste.

These precautions should be exercised when using plastic pipe. If plumbing codes exist in your area, check the codes before starting construction. Use only the kind of pipe designed for your intended purpose. Be sure to use the proper joint cement for the pipe you are installing. If possible, install pipe, turn on the water pressure and check all joints before covering the pipe.

Tested Bulls

The second of two annual performance tested bull sales at the University of Missouri-Columbia will be held Wednesday, November 10. Cattlemen can get an advance look at the bulls Nov. 9 when weighing and grading will take place. Those activities will start at 10:30 a.m.

A total of 194 performance tested bulls are consigned for the Nov. 10 sale. Offerings include 88 Angus, 74 Polled Herefords, 17 Herefords, eight Charolais, five Red Angus, and two Polled Shortorns.

Sale catalogs containing various data on each bull are available at the Extension Center.

All bulls will be from 17 to 23 months old by sale date. Consigned bulls were selected from among about 1,900 head on performance test.

In order to qualify for the performance tested sale, bulls must meet or exceed the following: Be choice feeder grade; have a lifetime average daily gain of 2.4 pounds; weigh 950 pounds or more at 365 days of age. Of the 194 head to be sold, 136 weighed more than 1,000 pounds and 30 bulls beat 1,100 pounds when a year old.

Be Extension Grade B off feed. Have passed a semen test within 90 days before the sale.

Fertilizing Recommended
Fertilizing grass-legume pastures at the end of the growing season is recommended as a way to keep stands healthy through the winter and promote early lush growth in the spring. Wise use of fertilizer on grassland is an excellent way to help control water pollution.

Any time throughout the fall and winter is satisfactory for top dressing alfalfa-grass and clover-grass pastures with phosphorus and potash.

Top dressing at this time of year will not be of much help in promoting plant growth this season. But, phosphorus and potash applied even after growth has slowed in the fall may still help alfalfa and clover plants remain healthy over winter. Winter heaving will also be reduced.

A major benefit will be realized next spring when grass-legume pastures take off early and vigorously as a result of fall and winter top dressing.

If grass-alfalfa and grass-clover pastures have not been fertilized since last spring, top dress with something like 0-40-120. There's no need for nitrogen. The legumes provide that nutrient.

Some persons have questioned fall and winter application of phosphorus and potash on the basis that nutrients might be lost through runoff.

Phosphorus and potash are bound to soil particles and will seldom leach away.

Recent research shows there is essentially no leaching of phosphorus from the soil into nearby lakes and streams.

So, don't worry about losing fertilizer dollars and polluting

Cyclone Damage

The wreckage of two boats aground near Jambu, India, gives testimony to the fury of a tidal wave which hit along the Indian coastline in Orissa State. Officials said more than 10,000 died in the disaster and that some areas in Orissa were still lying under salt water Monday, 10 days after the area was lashed by the tidal waves and 80 mph winds.

Decorative Fall Arrangements

Dried arrangements are popular expressions of fall. Finding and collecting naturally dried plant materials can be an enjoyable experience.

Picking seed pods and leaves in the fall will not injure most plants. The growth cycle is done. Remaining leaves and pods will soon be destroyed by the winter.

Don't overlook plants in the yard and garden when searching for dried plant material.

Several trees have seed pods that make excellent fall decoration. The long slender pods from catalpa may still be picked and dried. Seed pods of honey locust or Kentucky coffee trees are a rich brown. The golden rain tree has bladder-like three-sectioned pods that resemble Japanese lanterns and provide a rich golden brown.

Staghorn sumac fruit stalks will retain a red color when dried. They can be hung upside down to dry. Late in the fall they may be used directly in an arrangement and allowed to dry there.

Multiflora rose hips will hold their red color well if collected late in the fall and allowed to dry naturally indoors.

Cattails are a favorite for fall gathering but often disappointing because they may fall apart. Spray with a clear lacquer to help hold them together. For best results next year, collect cattails before July 4th.

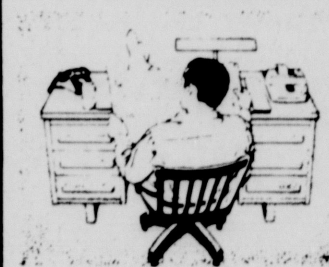

water sources through runoff.

Use of phosphorus and potash on grassland helps in the fight against pollution. The nutrients promote vigorous grass growth.

And grass is better than most other types of vegetation in controlling silt runoff into water supplies.

So, for better grass-legume pastures, top dress with phosphorus and potash in fall and winter. An added important benefit will likely be purer, cleaner water.

Is now the time to buy land?

Ferns can also still be gathered for fall and winter arrangements. Press the foliage to prevent excessive curling. However, just before the foliage is completely dry, remove the press and allow them to finish drying while standing in jars. In this way they will develop more graceful curves and not have a flat, stiff appearance.

Grasses also provide interesting seed heads that can be used immediately after picking.

Many weeds find their best and only use in the fall arrangement. Jimsom weed seed pods can look attractive indoors. Dock or sorrel is a common roadside plant. The seed heads become a chocolate brown after frost. Milkweed pod are distinctive and provide grey tones for an arrangement. Mullein can be dried if the downy grey leaves are picked now and allowed to dry at room temperature. Young shoots form a rosette of leaves that can be used as a focal point in an arrangement.

From the garden we can use seed stalks of onions or alliums. The centers of some flowers, such as cone flowers or the dried flower heads of yarrow, can be used directly.

Ornamental peppers can be cut and dried. Green fruits will turn red and wrinkle but maintain good color in the dried arrangement.

Cochran Sent To St. Louis

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Elusive robbery suspect James Leroy Cochran has been returned to St. Louis to await a federal grand jury investigation of his eight-day flight from police.

Cochran, 36, arrived here Saturday afternoon from a jail in Lexington, Ky., where he surrendered to the FBI. He is charged with the armed robbery Oct. 21 of the Cass Federal Savings & Loan Association of St. Louis.

A guard at the city jail said Cochran was "doing just fine" and was "talking and cheerful." Before his surrender authorities said Cochran's list of hostages in a cross-country run from police numbered 21.

Paul Lockhart, 45, of Leslie, Mo., has been charged as an accomplice in the $10,000 robbery. Lockhart pleaded guilty and sentencing was set for later in November.

U.S. Atty. Daniel Bartlett said the federal grand jury will be asked Nov. 16 to indict Cochran on charges of bank robbery and kidnapping.

Police continued an investigation of the death of an acquaintance of Cochran. The body of Marilyn Oliver, 21, of Florissant, Mo., was found about a week after the robbery on a farm near Leslie. She had been shot several times. Police said Mrs. Oliver's car was used during the holdup.

The couple has another daughter, Mrs. Genevieve Sublette, Versailles, Mo., and a grandchild and five great-grandchildren.

Available Credit Higher Now For State's Farmers

(Democrat Capital Service)

COLUMBIA — Missouri farmers will be able to tap the largest supply of supplemental credit in history this year through the Farmers Home Administration, according to John O. Foster, state director of the FHA.

More than $37 million will be available to Missouri farmers in the present fiscal year as a result of cooperative efforts between the FHA and commercial lenders, he said. This means that commercial credit sources and the FHA make simultaneous loans with the private lender having first claim on security.

Lending levels of FHA farm programs are also higher because of a substantial boost given the farm ownership program by President Nixon when he announced that national funding would be $350 million this fiscal year. This is $82 million above the 1971 fiscal level.

Foster said the plan is favorably received by commercial lenders, and private participation is expected to rise sharply. "It is our policy to assist people in finding the credit needed to begin farming or to help finance farm operations. We commit government funds only when we cannot involve private money. County Supervisors of the Farmers Home Administration are required to contact another lender with respect to every application for farm ownership or operating loans. We are more than pleased with the cooperation extended by banks and other credit sources to make this plan work," he said.

Additional information may be obtained from County Supervisor Fred J. Huhman at the Federal Building, 319 South Lamine, Sedalia.

Says Grain Action Is Required

Fearing further decreases in feed grain prices, Bob Asbury, Route 5, Pettis County chairman of the National Farmers Organization (NFO), last week urged county farmers to take advantage of three market-building tools to curb additional declines.

"With prices now at less than cost of production we must do more than we've ever done before to avoid dumping grain on the market," he said.

The three possibilities outlined by Asbury are:

— Using all available on-the-farm facilities to store feed grains and add capacity as needed with government financing.

— Storing grain in elevators, ASCS bin sties and warehouses and obtaining warehouse receipts as collateral for loans.

— Blocking feed grains in inventory with other farmers through NFO for nationwide bargaining and for negotiating higher price levels.

"This allows farmers to maintain control on grain normally dumped on the market at harvest time," he said, adding that all three approaches would continue to allow farmers to obtain loans.

"Farmers should make use of all available programs, government or otherwise, to store as much of their corn, milo, wheat, barley and oats as they possibly can," Asbury said.

Hunters Perish

Soviets Display Their Hardware

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet government staged its annual display of military might Sunday for the 54th anniversary of the Bolshevik Revolution, but nothing new was shown.

The parade went off like clockwork with troops, tanks, red-tipped missiles and thousands of Soviet citizens passing through swirling snow in Red Square.

Speaking from the reviewing stand atop Lenin's red granite tomb, Defense Minister Andrei A. Grechko stressed the Soviet Union's military capability. He mentioned the United States only indirectly, referring to "imperialist expansionist plans" in Vietnam and the Middle East.

With him were Communist party chief Leonid I. Brezhnev, Premier Alexei N. Kosygin, President Nikolai V. Podgorny and other government, party and military leaders.

The fur-capped leaders climbed to the reviewing stand to the accompaniment of muffled applause from gloved hands. The snow had just begun to fall.

When Grechko finished his six-minute speech, the military band struck up the Soviet national anthem. Artillery salvos echoed through the huge square, startling the pigeons on the Kremlin towers into flight.

By that time Lenin's tomb was draped in snow. It whitened the shoulders and caps of the massed troops marching past.

Then came the tanks, treads clanking on the cobblestones of Red Square. Rumbling vehicles pulled a sampling of the Kremlin's missile and rocket arsenal. Among the weapons were the 25-megaton SS9 intercontinental ballistic missile and the SAM2 antiaircraft missiles, along with antiballistic missiles and rockets for submarines.

As the tanks and missiles rolled out of sight down the hill behind St. Basil's Cathedral, members of sports organizations, schools and party units began their march. They entered the square from behind the Lenin Museum in two converging streams, carrying posters, slogan placards, red banners, balloons and paper flowers.

One huge poster bore a picture of Brezhnev and a reproduction of Pravda's front page on Oct. 31, showing the joint declaration of principles signed by the Communist party leader and President Georges Pompidou of France. Across the poster in big letters was stamped: "We approve."

The celebration of the 1917 revolution began Saturday with a rally in the Kremlin Palace of Congresses. Today also was a holiday.

Bob Hope Special Big Help

By CYNTHIA LOWRY
AP Television-Radio Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — A Bob Hope special with an all-star cast came along to brighten the tube Sunday night.

There was Jack Benny in 1929 Joe College clothes and a wig playing a campus Romeo. John Wayne, in a spoof of the popular "All In The Family," played a bigot of the Old West—he hated ranchers, bankers, cowboys, schoolmarm and Indians. Debbie Reynolds was a sexy lady spy in a lighthearted treatment about Henry Kissinger's recent visits to Peking.

The sketches on Hope's shows over the years have always looked as if they were tossed together on the spur of the moment. Very often they don't come off at all—the John Wayne sketch, for example, was heavyhanded and never got off the ground. But the participants seem to have such a good time that the audience is pulled right into the spirit of things.

Hope himself works engagingly into everything, but the high moment of the special, as usual, was his monologue.

Perhaps it is because Hollywood studios are turning out low-budget, hurry-up made-for-TV film features like flapjacks that the product has been thoroughly undistinguished so far this season.

Especially disappointing have been NBC's weekly "World Premiere" programs.

One can hardly expect top-drawer talent or writing on a weekly basis. But too many of the made-for-TV shows look like movies that would turn up on the bottom of a double feature bill in theatrical release.

"A Howling In The Woods" on NBC Friday night was an unimaginative attempt to create a thriller. It used every cliché device around—a dog howling in the woods, dark woods, and lots of rain, thunder and lightning. It still didn't help the story about a girl returning to her hometown to find the whole community hostile, her father away on a mysterious trip and her stepmother acting pretty strange. The veteran viewer of old black-and-white movies knew almost from the outset that the body in the forest grave was no deer and that there were killers around.

The "World Premieres" are turned out on a budget of $750,000 per show—the most expensive of the made-for-TV programs—and this season have been making a disappointing showing in the ratings. ABC's "Movie Of The Week," brought in on a budget of under $400,000 a show are particularly popular programs, most weeks showing up in Nielsen's top five.

Probe Explosion In Lee's Summit

LEE'S SUMMIT, Mo. (AP)—Six federal agents and 25 Metro squad officers joined in the investigation into the explosion that killed Mrs. Beverly Parsons, 29, when she tried to start her car outside her Lee's Summit apartment house early Sunday.

No one else was reported injured.

Robert H. Morrison, Lee's Summit fire chief, said an explosive, probably dynamite, was wired to the auto's ignition.

Mrs. Parsons, a kindergarten teacher, was divorced Wednesday from John G. Parsons of Warrensburg, Mo., and the couple's daughter, Jody, 6, spent Saturday night with him.

The blast in the residential area scattered debris more than 200 feet and was felt a mile away.

IRON CURTAIN TOUR

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP) — Following a tour of Communist counties of eastern Europe with a church singing group called "The Sound Foundation," Baptist minister Buckner Fanning reports the "response was overwhelming."

"Music is opening the doors so that we can all step through to share our witness for Jesus Christ," he says, adding that another tour is planned next year. "What God did was simply fantastic, and we are grateful that he is allowing us to be part of the great spiritual awakening that is occurring everywhere."

Garbage Into Gold May Be Achieved

The famous town whose citizens supported themselves by taking in each other's laundry was purely mythical, of course. But there's a for-real town in Virginia that hopes to solve its economic problems by taking in garbage from Washington, Baltimore and other nearby big cities.

Craigsville, a Shenandoah Valley community with a population of 978 the last time anybody looked, is converting an abandoned cement plant into a regional garbage recycling center which would provide 100 new jobs and a $1-million payroll.

The operation, scheduled to start next January, will involve the separation of refuse into its basic components—paper (usually about 50 per cent per ton), food scraps (11 per cent), bottles (7 per cent), steel cans (4 per cent) and so on.

The steel cans will be converted into magnetite, a material used in the processing of coal and which sells for $30 to $40 a ton. Other materials that are not sold for recycling will either be shredded into a growing medium for mushrooms or used as fuel in the cans-into-magnetite process.

At first, closed railroad cars will bring in about 500 tons of garbage a day. Craigsville plans for an eventual daily input of 10,000 tons, which is about the amount generated by four million people.

If the idea works — and if it does it will be a model for every other community in the nation, especially as landfill acreage runs out — the folks in Craigsville may want to erect a Statue of Garbage bearing some such inscription as:

"Send me your junk, your scrap, the wretched refuse of your teeming affluence. Send this, the homeless, trashcan — tossed to me. I lift my lamp beside the golden recycling plant."

U.S. Holds Cards In Trade Question

By RAY CROMLEY
NEA News Analyst

WASHINGTON (NEA) — The widespread American view that President Nixon's economic plan proves the U.S. economy is weak and its currency less important is not shared by everyone abroad.

Cromley

One friend, in a letter received a few days ago from his home in a major industrial nation, writes:

"Mr. Nixon's new economic policy has shown the world how powerful the United States still is: so far from the impression erroneously created by all the talk of a 'weak' dollar. Faced with the dollar let loose from gold and the 10 per cent import surcharge, what can other nations do? Retaliate? But is there anything they can do that will hurt the United States in any significant way?"

"Look at my country. The secret of her recent trade expansion has now been bared—the currency we so assiduously tried to keep undervalued."

The consternation abroad—persistent fears of major economic slumps in Germany, Japan, France, Belgium, Italy—prove to businessmen like my friend that their countries are still heavily dependent on sale to the United States. Any threats to an open U.S. market sends European and Japanese business and economic circles into deep gloom.

To the foreign businessmen with whom this reporter has been in contact, the situation is pretty clear cut. Despite rapid increases in wages in their countries, no nation has developed a mass market the size of that in the United States. In no other society are there so many families with so high a standard of living and such large amounts of money to spend on essentials and luxuries.

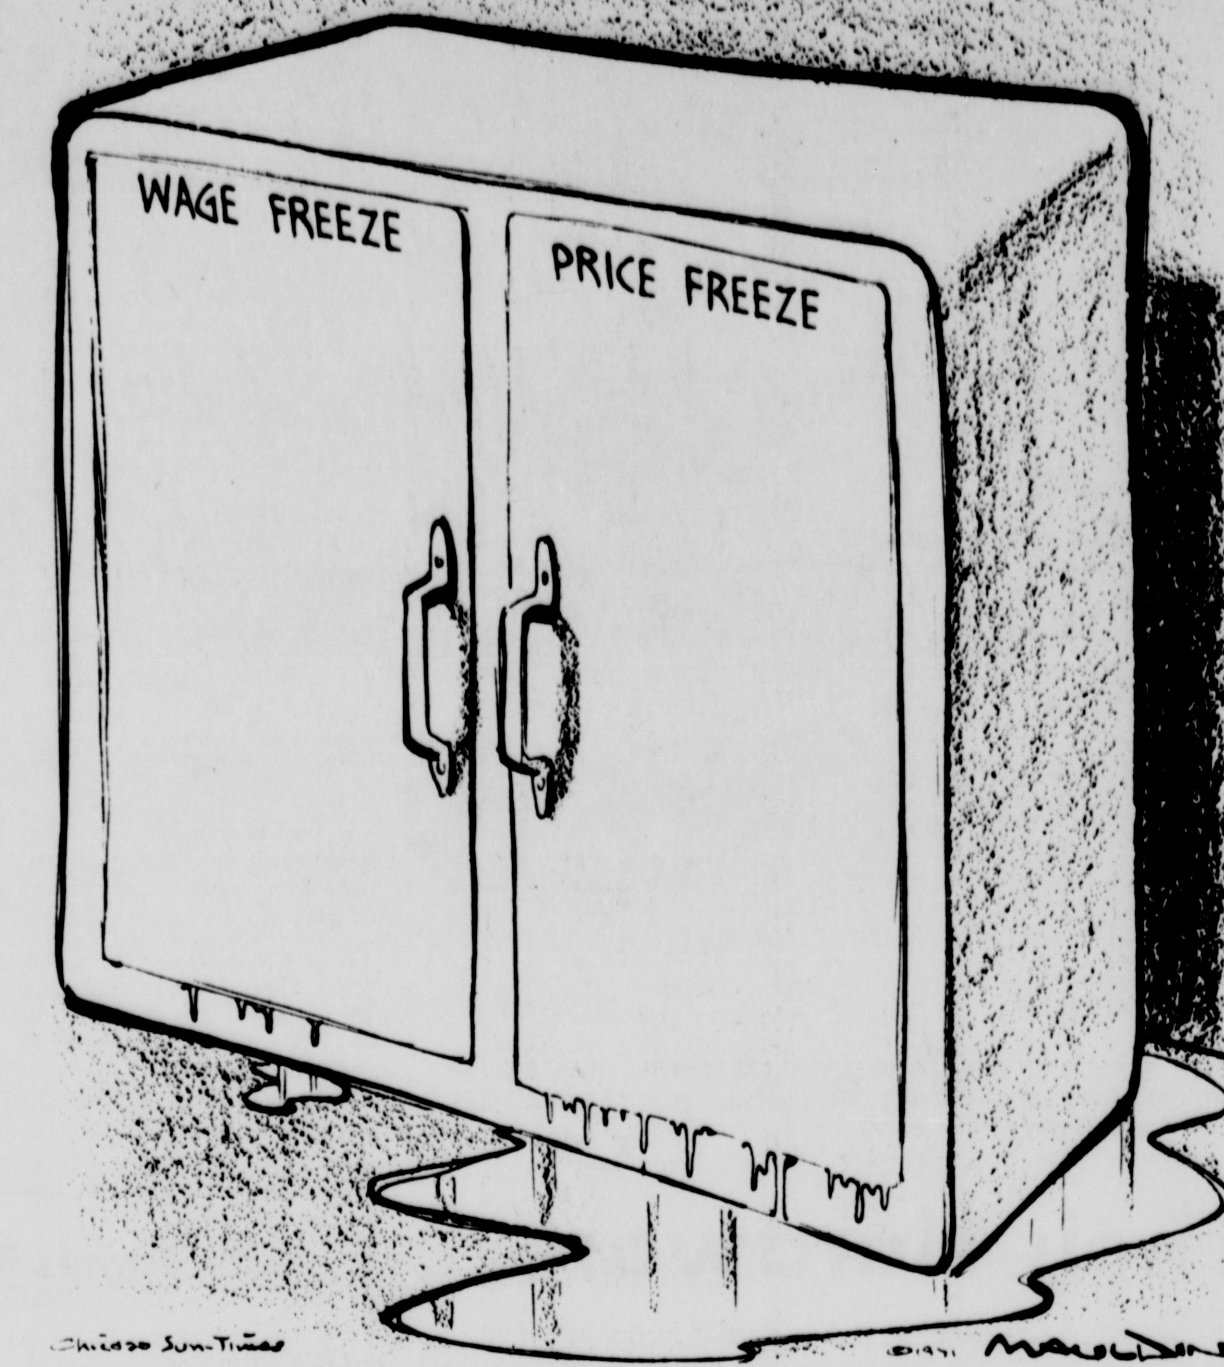

The small domestic market in some countries is a result of low wages or unequal distribution of income among the population. In a number of nations the potential mass market has been crippled because rapid wage gains in industry have not been matched by comparable increases in farm income.

The United States has led the world in the growth of efficiency and income on the farms. No other country has been able, through intensive mechanization, to shift so many of its citizens from farming to full- or part-time work in industry, the services and profession where average incomes are still higher.

What is clear, of course, is that the United States has become the world's prize market.

Despite those who claim the opposite, the spread of wealth in the United States down from the top has been very great indeed. The average income of the bottom 50 per cent of the U.S. population is closer to the average income of the top 50 per cent in any other country in the world.

The strength of the U.S. economy lies in the fact we have moved farther than any other country toward giving every man and woman a fair return for a day's work.

By JACK ANDERSON

WASHINGTON — Behind the diplomatic drama of the United Nations, Soviet KGB men and American FBI agents engage in a silent game of espionage and intrigue.

They keep one another under surveillance, compile dossiers on each other and lurk in the shadows with hidden cameras and tape recorders. The KGB plants agents and both sides recruit Secretariat informants.

All of this, of course, violates UN rules outrageously. Ugly pressure is brought on the informants, for example, to violate their UN oath that they will not "accept instructions in regard to the performance of my duties from any government or other authority external to the organization."

We have documented the case of a South American, seeking U.S. citizenship, who was assigned to work in the Secretariat under a high-ranking Russian. Not long after he applied for citizenship, the South American received a confidential telephone call from the FBI. He was asked to stop by an FBI office where he was pressed to furnish information about his Soviet superior.

The FBI agent was polite and made no mention of the pending citizenship application. But the dismayed South American feared his application would be rejected if he didn't cooperate.

He was "stupefied" by the information that the FBI had already gathered about the Russian. But the FBI wanted the prospective citizen to report on the Russian's daily schedule, to sneak glimpses into his appointments book, to listen for any unusual telephone calls, to make a note of all but routine visitors, to monitor the letters he wrote, to keep track of his travels and, significantly, to note any personal quirks or romantic inclinations.

The unhappy South American, whose identity we have agreed to withhold, didn't want to spy for the FBI in violation of his UN oath. But he also didn't want to jeopardize his chance of becoming a U.S. citizen. He put the FBI off, at first, by reporting that the Russian was secretive about his activities. Then the Latin got a new position far enough removed from any Russians that the FBI let him off the hook.

Of course, the FBI had good reason to be suspicious of the Russian. KGB agents have thoroughly infiltrated the Secretariat. They have used their UN cover to seek U.S. secrets, to promote anti-American activities and to compile dossiers on UN personnel. One Soviet UN employee was found to have thousands of dollars worth of sophisticated camera equipment in his apartment.

Indeed, the UN is the main Soviet espionage center in this country. The FBI and the State Department are at odds, however, over how to handle Soviet spies. Over the past decade, the U.S. has expelled only 11 Soviet UN employees. But the FBI has accumulated enough evidence to justify ousting several others.

The State Department feels that their back-alley activities aren't harmful enough to risk upsetting Soviet-American relations and that the expelled diplomats would merely be replaced by other spies anyway. The Kremlin would also retaliate by expelling American diplomats from Moscow where it's more difficult to arrange replacements.

Usually, the State Department has prevailed. But the FBI occasionally takes matters into its own hands.

Merry-Go-Round

A Quiet Spy Game Is Played at U.N.

This happened only a few weeks ago. The FBI had evidence that Vladimir Paulchenko, a top UN public relations official, was a key KGB agent. This information was quietly leaked to the New York Times just as his five-year UN contract came up for renewal. Since the State Department didn't expel him, the FBI hoped the publicity would force Russia to pull him out.

This is how the game is sometimes played behind the scenes at the United Nations.

turning brown in mid-July. At first the perplexed brass thought they may have used a herbicide in place of insecticide to control an infestation of insects. The lovely base in Tidewater, Va., they feared, would soon be as bare as a Vietnam forest. But base officials now think they were slipped a defective pesticide which adversely affected the trees. The only other plausible explanation, they say, is that some of the herbicide used to control grass around the runways somehow found its way into the root systems of the trees.

Democrat Unity Is Essential

WASHINGTON — A leading Democrat in the Kennedy-Johnson days was pondering his party's chances of winning back the White House in 1972.

"Damn it, I'm not looking for the PERFECT candidate," he said, "all I want is a winning candidate."

Then he voiced his fears that a lot of Democrats are still more interested in exercising personal pique, or parading their claim to a higher order of morality or intellectualism, than they are in winning.

He didn't say what had rearoused those fears, but it is possible that former Sen. Eugene McCarthy was to blame.

Lyndon B. Johnson was transparently uneasy to see Hubert H. Humphrey win the Presidency in 1968. Chicago's pouting Mayor Richard Daley, whose cops helped to turn the Democratic convention into a debacle, draped HHH in his own special curse. But Minnesotan McCarthy might well claim that he, as much as anyone, was responsible for Humphrey's narrow loss to Richard M. Nixon.

McCarthy finally issued a tepid endorsement of Humphrey, but only after he had snake-doctored tens of thousands of liberal intellectuals into believing that there was no real difference between Humphrey and Nixon and that it would be a blight on democracy to vote for either.

McCarthy, always a strange man with one foot just outside the real world, seemed to have lost himself recently in a poetic labyrinth of iambic pentameters. But the word is out that he is still on his ego trip and has made his move for another run at the Presidency.

Ordinarily this would be laughable, for McCarthy has almost nothing to recommend him to the Presidency and has, in fact, no chance of winning the White House.

But it is obvious that McCarthy gets his kicks out of being a spoiler, and it is no laughing matter to reflect on what McCarthy did for Democrats in 1968.

Every time the new Nixon Supreme Court makes a ruling that offends liberals and civil libertarians, those plague-on-both-their-houses intellectuals can thank McCarthy.

It ought to be obvious to the dumbest of voters now that there is always a difference between two candidates, and even though we can indulge in sweet philosophical protestations against ever helping "the lesser of two evils," in this society it is generally foolhardy not to do so.

But there is evidence that thousands of Democrats learned nothing from the debacle of 1968. They threaten to be a house divided again in 1972, which is surely one of the reasons why Nixon's political aides are already talking about a "landslide victory" in the next election.

Nixon clearly has improved his chances of reelection with dramatic initiatives toward Communist China and the Soviet Union, and his almost complete reversal of economic policy. It is equally clear that he knows how to use the special advantages an incumbent President has of being able to announce in his own way his own time actions designed to win him votes.

Despite all this, there is no solid reason to believe that Nixon personally is any more popular than he was in 1968 when he won by a very narrow margin. Not a week passes that you don't hear someone exclaim that he "supported Nixon in '68 and I've lived to regret it." But who recalls ever hearing anyone say, "I voted against Nixon in '68, but he's been such a good President I'll have to support him next time?"

A united Democratic party with even a reasonably good candidate still stands to make it very tough for Nixon to win reelection. The Democrats have an ample supply of reasonably good candidates, but they are in short supply of unity.

If McCarthy does run he'll again attract a corps of malcontents and super snobs who will delight in bolting up the whole political system just because they are not important wheels in it.

The evidence remains heavy that, partly out of frustration, but more out of personal vanity and publicity-seeking, a few black politicians are going to stage a fourth- or fifth-party operation.

New York Mayor John Lindsay is saying he opposes "party unity for unity's sake," welcomes "McCarthy's contributions," whatever that means, and talks as though the most important thing is for the Democrats to nominate a "progressive," mentioning one or two who at this point seem to have absolutely no chance of defeating Nixon.

No one expects Democrats to stop scrapping to win the nomination for a man of certain ideology, but the challenge is for the various factions not to get so committed to labels that when their man loses at the convention they feel compelled to go home pouting, determined to exact retribution during the campaign.

Whether the Democrats stand a chance of winning hinges on whether someone can talk McCarthy into sticking to poetry. Rep. Shirley Chisholm into admitting her candidacy for the Presidency might hurt a lot of people and help no one, and the rest of the Democrats into remembering that the object of the game is to WIN.

Mr. Nixon's political lieutenants must be chuckling over the likelihood that no more than one of these goals can be accomplished.

Says Drink Tax Unjust

In order that your readers will not get the wrong impression, would you permit me to elaborate on or make clear the thinking back of the statements, quoted as coming from me, which were a part of your news article (Nov. 3), having to do with the progress of the petition campaign of the Missouri Soft Drink Association.

The Missouri Soft Drink Association does not oppose the program of the Conservation Commission. However, every voter should take a long look at putting into the hands of a four man commission 400 million dollars, to be used at their discretion. Especially when the state of Missouri now has one of the finest conservation programs in America and receives annually some 11 million dollars to support their work.

Secondly, I would not leave the impression that the method of financing would be acceptable to the soft drink people if other leisure foods and soft drinks were included with us. I simply mean that any leisure food or any non-carbonated soft drink is a competitive item to a carbonated soft drink. To force the soft drink industry to collect a tax of this magnitude, from the drinkers of carbonated soft drinks, would create a tremendous wave of consumer resistance and place us in a highly vulnerable position with competition.

I am not saying other competition items should be included. I am saying it should not be the burden of any consumer product or group of products to finance a program designed for the good of all our people.

Mo. Soft Drink Assn.

A. B. Case,
President

Oswald: "How about a week or two of matchpoint hands? Many of our readers play duplicate."

Jim: "Here's one from Pittsburgh. South plunked his king of spades on East's queen and studied the hand a while. At rubber bridge he would undoubtedly have cashed four hearts and two diamonds to be sure of his contract, but South felt that making just one no-trump would not be a good match-point score. Therefore, he ducked a diamond to East at trick two. The result was delightful for North and South. East returned the 10 of spades. South covered with the jack. West took his ace; cashed the nine of spades and led the seven whereupon South made the rest of the tricks for a top score."

Oswald: "I assume that East and West were most unhappy."

Jim: "They sure were. East suggested that West should have shifted to a club either before or after taking his nine of spades. West felt that East should have played a club instead of the 10 of spades."

Oswald: "East's contention is really valid. West should have known that South held the spade eight. As for West's contention, East might well have tried a low club when he got in. In either case their joint errors gave South a top instead of what would probably have been a bottom score."

Saints Tie Raiders Late

Patched Up Jets Upset Kansas City, 13-10

By KEN RAPPOPORT
Associated Press Sports Writer

The Kansas City Chiefs were gone with the wind and Ed Hargett's storm buffeted the Oakland Raiders.

Those elements combined Sunday to keep the American Football Conference's Western Division race in an extremely tight state.

Capricious winds, howling up to 35 miles an hour at New York's Shea Stadium, were a deciding factor as the Jets blew out the favored Chiefs 13-10 in the National Football League.

Hargett, meanwhile, was another natural phenomenon, directing three last-half touchdown drives to help the New Orleans Saints salvage a gummy 21-21 tie with the powerful Raiders.

The day's results moved Oakland into sole possession of first place in the bitter West race, only a half-game ahead of arch-rival Kansas City.

"It was a tough day to work," said Kansas City quarterback Len Dawson after getting caught up in a Jet stream. "Fighting that wind makes it tough. You couldn't lob the ball because the wind got hold of it and you never knew what it would do to the ball."

Hargett, on the other hand, knew where the ball was going every minute as he came off the bench to work his late magic.

Veteran George Blanda, who has performed similar heroics for Oakland but didn't get the chance this time, agreed that Hargett headlined the "Blanda Show" well.

"Yeah, he did," said Blanda, "and more credit to him."

Other surprises laced the NFL Sunday as the last-place Philadelphia Eagles soared to a 7-7 tie with the Washington Redskins, leaders of the National Conference's Eastern Division, and the Green Bay Packers upended the Chicago Bears, who are fighting for the lead in the National Conference's Central Division.

The Dallas Cowboys had to battle to pull out a 16-13 triumph over the St. Louis Cardinals; the San Francisco 49ers won a 13-9 fight over the Minnesota Vikings in a meeting between division leaders and the Miami Dolphins rode a rugged running attack to a 34-0 victory over the Buffalo Bills to keep their lead in the American Conference East.

Elsewhere, the Pittsburgh Steelers dominated the Cleveland Browns 26-9 and tied them for first place in the AFC Central race; the New York Giants turned on the high-scoring San Diego Chargers 35-17; the Atlanta Falcons disposed of the Cincinnati Bengals 9-6; the New England Patriots pasted the Houston Oilers 28-20 and the Detroit Lions slugged the Denver Broncos 24-20.

The Baltimore Colts host the Los Angeles Rams in a game tonight.

Long before Bobby Howfield gunned through a 39-yard field goal in the fourth quarter for the New York Jets' winning points, they had plenty of help from the tricky wind currents at Shea.

The elements handicapped the Dawson-to-Otis Taylor passing combination, one of the hottest in pro football. Dawson was able to connect with his favorite target only twice during the game and threw for a subpar total of 111 yards overall with 13 completions.

Winds also blew off target a 39-yard field goal try by Kansas City's Jan Stenerud just minutes before Howfield's game-winner.

"It's a cross wind here," said Howfield, a former Chief. "It kind of swirls every which-way. I just tried to compensate for it as best I could."

"Had the winds not been blowing it would have been different," the veteran said, shaking his head. "The ball would start out fine ... but then take off."

Hargett, who came in after starter Archie Manning injured his right elbow, took the Saints on touchdown marches of 79, 52 and 77 yards. But he wouldn't take all the credit for it, citing the Saints' strong running attack.

"When you can run the ball well, it enables your offensive linemen to set up better and give you better pass blocking," said the young quarterback, who also praised the Saint defense for stopping Oakland's vaunted offense.

Washington had a fancy 6-1 record before having to pull out a tie with the Eagles. The Redskins staved off defeat when Billy Kilmer threw a TD pass to Clifton McNeil with four minutes left.

Lou Michaels kicked a 22-yard field goal with 50 seconds left, leading Green Bay over Chicago. The loss kept the Bears one game off Minnesota's Central-leading pace in the National Conference.

Tony Fritsch kicked a 23-yard field goal with less than two minutes remaining for the Dallas victory that kept the Cowboys within shooting range of Washington, 1½ games behind.

John Brodie and Gene Washington teamed on a six-yard TD pass to lead the National Conference's Western Division-leading 49ers over Minnesota; Mercury Morris churned out 116 yards and Larry Czonka, 88, to help Miami win; Roy Gerela kicked four field goals for Pittsburgh; Charlie Evans scored three TDs in the New York Giant victory; Dick Shiner's 46-yard TD pass with a minute left paced Atlanta; New England used a blitz to sack Houston and Detroit came up with 17 points in the third quarter and a fourth-quarter TD to stop Denver.

Dallas Turns Back Cards

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Tom Landry won't say how long it'll last, but right now Roger Staubach's in charge of the Dallas Cowboys' stretch drive in the National Football Conference East.

The 6-foot-3 Staubach, a shuttle quarterback most of the season, earned the spurs Sunday in picking the Cowboys off the ground and leading them past the hapless St. Louis Cardinals 16-13.

Dallas' victory lifted it to 5-3 in the NFC East, 1½ games back of the Washington Redskins (6-1-1), who tied the Philadelphia Eagles 7-7.

Landry, who had previously criticized Staubach's scrambling tendencies, even had charitable words for the ex-Navy wonder's maneuvers out of passing pockets on runs totaling 60 yards.

"I'd say it's not a bad thing to do unless you get hurt," Landry said. "We don't preach it, but Roger got a little excited in the fourth quarter and felt he had to run."

"I just wanted to get down there and score," said Staubach, whose longest romp was 30 yards concluding the first half. "Sometimes you have to do things that aren't in the game plans."

Staubach, quarterbacking the Cowboys throughout, stayed home long enough to complete 20 of 31 passes from the pocket for 199 yards and the Dallas touchdown.

But impetus for the game's decisive drive was provided by runs of seven and eight yards on scrambling missions advancing the ball to the Dallas 32.

Staubach then sprang Duane Thomas on a run of 21 yards to St. Louis' 48 and triggered passes to Lance Alworth and Walt Garrison before rifling a four-yard touchdown pass to Mike Ditka.

The 86-yard march required 15 plays and established a 13-10 Dallas lead wiped out when Jim Bakken converted his second field goal, a kick from the Cowboys' 36, with 8:09 remaining.

But Staubach went immediately to work again, this time spurring Dallas 54 yards in setting up tiny Austrian placekicker Toni Fritsch's third field goal, a placement from St. Louis' 26 with 1:53 remaining.

"I was pleased with our ability to come from behind," said Landry, whose team trailed by 10-3 at halftime and by 10-6 after Fritsch, a soccer-style kicker, booted a 14-yard field goal in the third quarter.

The 5-foot-7, 185-pound Fritsch, activated only last week from the Cowboys' taxi squad, kicked a 27-yard field goal in the opening period for Dallas' other points.

They provided a 3-0 lead that held up only until Bakken, a conventional-style kicker, made good on a 41-yard field goal attempt 49 seconds into the second quarter.

St. Louis' Jim Hart, who made good on 12 of 23 passes, took over late in the first half with an aerial bomb of 51 yards setting up an 11-yard touchdown peg to Dave Williams.

The Cards, who have won only one of five home games, moved to Dallas' 26 on a 34-yard pass from Hart to MacArthur Lane late in the third quarter.

Hart zeroed in on tight end Jackie Smith for an apparent touchdown on the next play, but a holding penalty wiped out the play.

Three plays later Johnny Roland fumbled at Dallas' 14. Chuck Howley recovered and Staubach launched the drive turning the tide.

"I think that was the key to the whole game," said Landry. "We had a chance to lock it up or at least almost lock it up, but we didn't make many mistakes, but they didn't either. They didn't have the penalty when they threw for a touchdown."

Bradshaw on Crutches

Pittsburgh quarterback Terry Bradshaw stands on the sidelines with the aid of crutches late in the Steelers-Browns game, Sunday. He suffered a badly sprained left ankle in the second quarter, but probably will be able to play Sunday. The Steelers whipped the Browns, 26-9. (UPI)

At Houston . . .

Dropout Rate Grows Larger

HOUSTON (AP)—Tex Winter is trying to teach a new offense to his National Basketball Association Houston Rockets but the dropout rate is getting frightening.

First Elvin Hayes refused to substitute into a game when called and later missed a practice. Hayes returned to classes after a discussion with Winter and management.

Sunday the Don Adams case flared up again when the second year forward from Northwestern was told by Winter not to suit up until he gets in shape.

Adams walked out of the Rockets camp for the second time Saturday after an argument with Winter and the Rockets say they are trying to negotiate a trade.

"I tried to correct something he was doing wrong at practice Saturday," Winter said before Sunday night's game against Baltimore. "And he walked off the court."

Adams, who was a big surprise for the Rockets last season after being selected in the eighth round, was suspended last month for refusing to accompany the team on a road trip in a squabble over his contract.

"Since he rejoined the team he hasn't worked that hard to get back in shape," Winter said. "So at this point he is not the asset that he should be. At the present time we're in the process of negotiating a trade."

Rockets Advisory General Manager Pete Newell said Adams had not been suspended again. He said Adams was just being kept out of uniform until he gets back into shape.

Newell admitted, however, that there was little chance Adams would return to the Rockets and trade negotiations were under way.

Winter, in his first season as a pro coach, has had trouble getting his new triple post offense installed and the Rockets have fizzled badly in their first season in Houston. Sunday's game was no exception as they lost 109-106, dropping their record to 2-11.

Trevino Bid Fails

Gallardo Takes Tourney

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Lee Trevino had a warning for Spain's Angel Gallardo, who won the Mexican Open Sunday and destroyed Trevino's dream of a fourth national gold championship.

"We'll see it up again on Thursday and see what happens then."

Trevino, who never was really a factor in the final round, was referring to this week's World Cup championship in Palm Beach Gardens, Fla. Trevino and Jack Nicklaus will represent the United States in the 46-nation competition and Gallardo and Ramon Sota will represent Spain.

The slim, dark Gallardo, who does not compete on the American tour and is little known outside of Europe, pulled off a major upset when he sank a 22-foot birdie putt on the final hole for a one-stroke victory.

Gallardo had a final round 70, two under par on the demanding Club de Golf course, and finished with a 72-hole total of 275.

Billy Maxwell, a 42-year-old veteran of 18 years on the American tour, started the cool and cloudy final day in a tie with Gallardo for the top spot but couldn't match the Spaniard's birdie-birdie finish and came in second by a stroke with a 71 for 276.

Trevino, already the holder of the American, British and Canadian national championships, was a heavy favorite to win this one, too, but could do no better than tie for third with a 69 for 280.

Mexico's Juan Neri and Victor Regalado had the same total.

Trevino, as he had promised, donated his $2,333 winnings from the total purse of $28,000 to the Mexican national orphanage.

"Sure, I'm disappointed," Trevino said. "I had been wanting to win this for a couple months and I think the people down here wanted me to win. But it's awful hard to win again when you're coming right off a win (he set a single-season money winning record of $227,243 last week when he won the Sahara Invitational), particularly when you want it as much as I did this one."

"We'll try it again next year."

Trevino, highly popular with the gallery, was mobbed by fans and jostled by the uninhibited crowd as he moved down the fairways.

He started the final round six strokes back, turned in par 36 and never really was a factor.

MVC Regains Lead in Loop

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
For the second time this season, Missouri Valley has won a one-point decision on a Greg Tinnon placement. Saturday that point meant the lead in the Heart of America Conference going into the final week of play.

Royals, Jacksonville Ink 3-Year Contract

KANSAS CITY (AP) — The Kansas City Royals signed a three-year working agreement today with Jacksonville, Fla., of the Class AA Southern League.

Lou Gorman, director of the Royals' minor league operations and scouting, said a manager for the Jacksonville club would be named in the next few weeks.

Kansas City operated the Elmira, N.Y., team in the Class AA Eastern League last year. Elmira won the championship. Jacksonville, owned by Marshall Fox, worked with the Cleveland Indians last season. Fox also is the club's general manager.

To Play in Tourney

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — LeMoyne-Owen College of Memphis has again this year been invited to participate in the Chicago Christmas Basketball Classic, officials of the school said.

Valley and William Jewell started the day tied for first place. But while Tinnon's Pat gave the Vikings a 7-6 nod over Graceland, unheralded Baker stunned the Cardinals, 15-14.

Tarkio reeled off its third straight triumph, a 14-0 verdict that knocked Ottawa out of contention, and Central Methodist used a big first half to batter College of Emporia, 23-0.

Missouri Valley a 17-14 loser to William Jewell two Saturdays back, thus is assured of at least a tie for the HOA championship. The Vikings carry a 5-1 league mark and 6-2 season record into their finale Saturday night at Emporia. The Wildcats are 2-4 and 2-5.

If the Vikings win, second place will be at stake in Saturday afternoon's battle between William Jewell, 4-2, and Graceland, 3-2-1, at Lamoni, Iowa. Tarkio, 3-3, closes at Central Methodist, 2-4, and Baker, 1-4-1, is at Ottawa, 3-3.

Reserve quarterback Lex Balazik drove Valley to a third-quarter tie with Graceland, passing 12 yards to Dan Kratzer for the touchdown. Tinnon then toed the extra point. The freshman kicking specialist had decided an identical 7-6 squeaker over Central Methodist Oct. 15.

Al Dicken had passed 20 yards to Dennis Fabian to give Graceland a 6-0 halftime lead after the conversion failed. The Iowa club slips to 5-2-1 for the season.

Baker provided the major surprise, since the Baldwin,

Kan., crew had managed only five losses and a pair of ties in its first seven games.

But Larry Redmon's six-yard run with 7:03 remaining and Scot Steele's placement leveled Jewell's season mark at 4-4. Steele had nabbed a two-point conversion pass from Greg Barnett in the second quarter after Barnett's 14-yard touchdown strike to Mike Atwood.

Jewell scored in the first and third quarters of the see-saw battle. Dan Griggs passed six yards to Weader Millentree and Rick Atha hauled in a six-yard TD shot from Tom Geer.

Central Methodist got TD runs of four and five yards from Kiff Dalton and a four-yard burst by fullback Roger Eberhart. Calvin Brown trapped Steve Howard in the end zone for a safety as the Methodists got all their points in the first half. It was the third win against five losses for Central.

Bobby Williams ran 18 yards and Rod Stanley 11 for Ottawa's touchdowns.

Zero Hour Nears Between NU, OU

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Nebraska, the nation's No. 1 football team, and Oklahoma, No. 2, face their last tests Saturday before their No. 25 get-together that could decide the Big Eight Conference championship and possibly the national title.

Nebraska, unbeaten in 28 straight games, may have its hands full against vastly improved Kansas State at Manhattan, Kan.

Oklahoma is host at Norman, Okla., to Kansas, a team that often is impressive but hasn't been able to put it all together for four quarters.

In other Big Eight games Saturday, Missouri invades Iowa State and Oklahoma State plays at Colorado, the 13th-ranked team.

Of the underdogs facing the elite, Kansas State seems in the best position to turn spoiler. The Wildcats' Dennis Morrison, who passed for 303 yards and three touchdowns in Saturday's 35-23 triumph over Oklahoma State, has put together three straight great aerial games and has finally found himself as a passer and scrambler.

Kansas was all even with Colorado after three periods and then, like Oklahoma State, succumbed to a 21-point outburst by the Buffs in the final stanza. Colorado won 35-14.

Nebraska, meanwhile, ran its season's record to 9-0 and 5-0 in league play by downing Iowa State 37-0. Oklahoma, 8-0 and 4-0, had to depend on three big plays to overcome Missouri 20-3.

"What a difference a quarterback makes," said Coach Vince Gibson of Kansas State, 4-5 and 2-4. "The goal line stand was the key and then, when our offense marched 99 yards to score."

Gibson's reference to the goal line stand was to the Cowboys' failure to score on three jabs from the one-yard line.

Gibson was too overcome by his team's sudden success to think about Nebraska immediately. The Wildcats trailed 17-0 at the half.

Coach Floyd Gass of Oklahoma State, 4-3-1 and 2-2, agreed that the goal line stand was the turning point. "We felt like we could get to Morrison but their offensive line did a good job of pass protection."

"We won't quit. We're not that type of team. I think we'll be ready to play Colorado."

Nebraska got all the points it needed to beat Iowa State, 5-3 and 2-3, on Rich Sanger's 26-yard field goal in the first period. Sanger got two more before it was over, and Johnny Rodgers ran 10 yards and returned a punt 62 yards for touchdowns.

Coach Bob Devaney of Nebraska said the Cornhuskers played their best defense of the campaign but he was "not overjoyed with our passing game. I didn't think our defense could hold a team as good as Iowa State to 106 yards running and passing."

Johnny Majors, the optimistic Iowa State coach, said afterwards, "I don't think we could beat them if we played them 10 times. I see why they're No. 1 nationally on defense."

Oklahoma beat Missouri, 1-8 and 0-5, on linebacker Mark Driscoll's 70-yard blocked field goal return, Roy Bell's 78-yard run up the middle and Jack Mildren's 44-yard pass to Al Chandler.

The Sooners got off only one really sustained drive, 84 yards on 19 plays, but didn't score against the Tigers' tough defense, which held the nation's second-best yardage collector, Greg Pruitt, to 92 yards on 23 carries.

"It's the best defense we've faced this year," Sooners Coach Chuck Fairbanks said. "They did nothing different defensively for us—just played their basic defense."

"I do hope both Oklahoma and Nebraska can win next Saturday so that both teams will be unbeaten when they meet Thanksgiving."

"I don't get much satisfaction from holding a team down to a certain amount of yardage (407 yards rushing)," said Missouri Coach Al Onofrio.

Stadium Plans Unveiled

(Democrat-Capital Service)

KANSAS CITY — The Kansas City Royals' much-talked-about scoreboard and water spectacular at the Harry S. Truman Sports Complex, two luxurious features which will set the ultra-modern structure apart from any other baseball stadium ever built, came to life Monday when they were placed on display at a mid-morning press conference.

The $2 million scoreboard which will majestically reach 12 stories high and will take the form of the Royals' stately crest, and the intricate $750,000 water display which stretches more than 300 feet long are the two major features added to the stadium by the Royals to complement the Jackson-County-financed stadium which already possesses uniqueness in that it is being built solely for baseball.

The Royals also unveiled plans for a stadium club of unparalleled quality and revealed plans for a season ticket drive for the 1972 season when they will begin play in the

Ex-Ranger Stars Aid Minnesota

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

While the New York Rangers are leading the National Hockey League's East Division, a couple of ex-Rangers are helping the Minnesota North Stars stay atop the West Division.

Gump Worsley, the chubby 42-year-old goalie, stopped 27 Philadelphia shots and 39-year-old Dean Prentice set up two goals Sunday night as the North Stars blanked the Flyers 3-0, raising their record to 10-2-2.

The victory kept Minnesota tied with Chicago for the West lead. The Black Hawks kept pace, beating the Pittsburgh Penguins 4-1.

In other NHL games, Montreal edged Boston 3-2, Detroit and Buffalo tied 3-3, and California routed Toronto 8-1.

Prentice, who formerly played on the same Ranger teams with Worsley, assisted on Murray Oliver's first-period goal and Lou Nanne's second-period tally. Danny Grant scored the other Minnesota goal, in the third period.

The Black Hawks, 11-4, did all scoring their scoring against Pittsburgh in the second period as Stan Mikita, Danny O'Shea, Jim Pappin and Bobby Hull beat Roy Edwards. Val Fonteyne's first goal of the season, midway through the final period, prevented the Penguins from being blanked.

Marc Tardif's pair of first-period goals and Frank Mahovlich's 15th of the season—tops in the league—carried Montreal's defending Stanley Cup champions past Boston. The triumph gave the Canadiens a 9-2-2 record for 20 points, two behind the idle Rangers in the East.

Defenseman Doug Barrie's goal with 3:17 remaining pulled Buffalo into its tie with Detroit. Sabres' goalie Roger Crozier played brilliantly, stopping 40 Red Wings shots. Tim Ecclestone had a goal and an assist for Detroit.

Eight players scored for California in the Golden Seals' romp over Toronto that lifted them into third place in the West. Dave Keon's goal with less than four minutes remaining spoiled the shutout bid of California rookie goalie Gilles Meloche.

In Saturday night's NHL action, it was: Boston 2, Detroit 1; New York 3, Vancouver 1; Montreal 2, Chicago 1; Minnesota 5, St. Louis 1, and Toronto 3, Los Angeles 2.

ADCO Wins Divisional Cup Title

ADCO of the Atom Division in the Sedalia Khoury Soccer League concluded their most successful season ever Sunday in the Invitational Soccer Cup Tournament.

ADCO, who went through the season without a tie or a defeat, came up with an overtime period goal to win the Atom Division championship, 2-1, over ABC Comets of St. Ann, Mo.

The win was the first Invitational Soccer Cup divisional championship for any Sedalia club in two years.

Jeff Shull scored the first goal for ADCO, while Randy Higgins netted the winning score in overtime.

Third place in the Atom Division went to the Congo Boys Club of St. Louis with a 6-2 win over Paddock Chrysler, also of St. Louis.

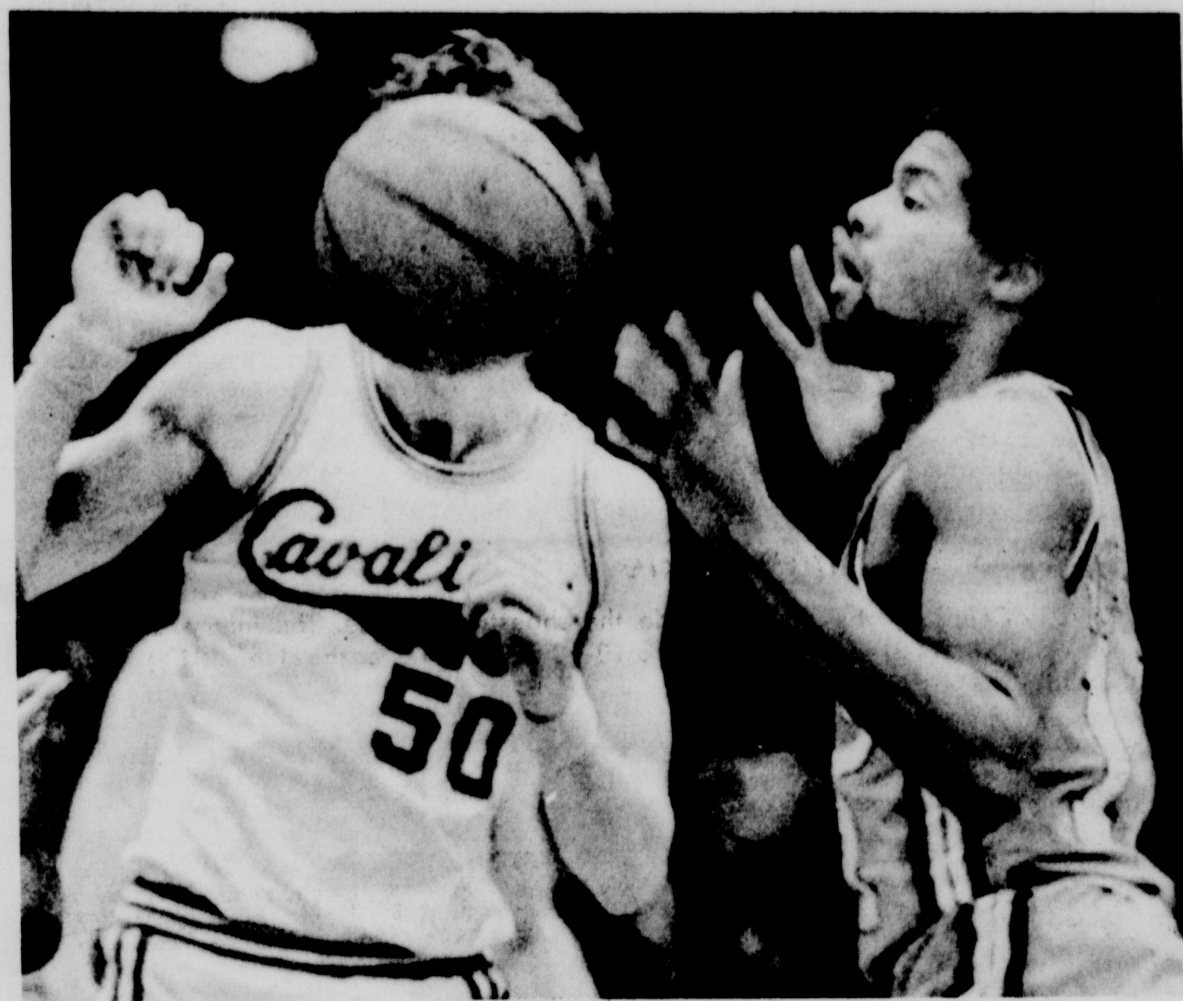

The Sedalia Jaycees' squad came up through the losers' bracket and won a 1-0 decision over the Rangers of Cahokia, Ill. Lance Locke scored the game's only goal.

In the championship contest of the Bantam Division, the Carondelet Sunday Morning Athletic Club of St. Louis won over George's Gypsies of Sedalia, 3-0.

The Congo Boys Club of St. Louis took third-place honors with a 1-0 win over Burkholders (Sedalia); the Mitchell Athletic Club of Granite City, Ill., blanked the West Side Optimist of Kansas City, Kan., 2-0, for consolation.

In the midget division, Chippawa Trust of St. Louis scored a 4-0 win over the Carondelet Sunday Morning Athletic Club for the championship of the 12-13 age division.

The ABC Saints of St. Ann, Mo., rolled over Sedalia ADCO, 14-0, for the third-place win; Kleinberg's Lounge, St. Louis, blanked the Mitchell Athletic Club of Granite City, Ill., 2-0, for consolation.

First Home Win

Cavs Catch Fire To Whip Blazers

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

"Don't bury us, we'll come back," warned Cleveland Coach Bill Fitch after the Cavaliers had played what he called the worst home game in their history.

The renaissance took place Sunday night, probably much sooner than even Fitch anticipated, as the Cavaliers stunned the Portland Trail Blazers 120-99.

Only Friday night, the second-year Cavaliers had the poorest shooting night from the field in their shortlived National Basketball Association career, hitting less than 27 per cent in bowing to Phoenix 107-87.

"It's as poor as we've played at home, and that includes 41 games last year," moaned Fitch. "We didn't play well in any department. We didn't shoot, pass, run or play defense."

In their next game, against Portland, the Cavaliers showed a complete reversal. Bobby Smith scored 26 points. Rick Roberson and Bobby Washington set team records, Roberson with 23 rebounds and Washington with 20 assists. And Roberson added 19 points and Charlie Davis had 18 as the Cavaliers posted their first home victory of the season.

Elsewhere in the NBA, Baltimore edged Houston 109-106. Golden State downed Seattle 109-102, and Los Angeles topped New York 103-96.

No games were scheduled in the American Basketball Association.

Baltimore's Jack Marin pumped in a career high 42 points in the Bullets' victory over troubled Houston. The Rockets played without forward Don Adams, who did not dress for the game after getting into a verbal disagreement with Coach Tex Winter.

Center Elvin Hayes, who had a recent dispute with Winter, led the Rockets in scoring with 38 points, his season high.

Nate Thurmond paced Golden State with 28 points and 21 points, but the Warriors needed Joe Ellis' 10 points in the last quarter to hold off a Seattle comeback. Seattle's Spencer Haywood led all scorers with 32 points.

Los Angeles' victory over New York put the Lakers into undisputed possession of first place in the Pacific Division. Jerry West topped the Lakers with 29 points and Gail Goodrich added 26. Jerry Lucas was high for New York with 20 points.

Saturday night, in the NBA, it was: Boston 124, Portland 109; Cincinnati 110, Phoenix 95; Buffalo 130, Chicago 99; Philadelphia 101, Atlanta 96; Milwaukee 106, Detroit 78, and Los Angeles 105, Golden State 89.

In the ABA Saturday night, the results were: Kentucky 102, New York 97; Dallas 97, Carolina 92; Utah 108, Indiana 107 in overtime; Memphis 122, Virginia 121 in overtime, and Floridians 136, Pittsburgh 121.

The Great Gold Rush: (A treasure worth discovering)

Like all masterpieces, the supply of McCormick Gold Label is limited. Because it's handmade. The same slow way our family's made it since 1856. Just 24 barrels a day. No shortcuts. McCormick. From the Golden Age of Bourbons. Try it.

Emotions Are Mixed On School Lunch Plan

WASHINGTON (AP) — Although they fought hard for it, supporters of the 25-year-old federal school lunch program have mixed emotions about the congressional resolution that keeps the program from being cut back this year.

"It's a major victory in the short run," Gerald Cassidy, counsel for the Senate Select Committee on Nutrition and Human Needs, said of the resolution signed Saturday by President Nixon.

"We prevented the administration from doing... every restrictive thing they planned to do," he said. "But the question remains as to what they will attempt to do through legislation next year to limit the program."

Barbara Bode, vice president of The Children's Foundation, a private group that monitors government food programs, wasn't even optimistic about the short-term effects.

"I see this as a step backwards," she said. "The resolution is more restrictive than the law it was supposed to reinforce. It's a classic example of too little and too late, and it cuts the program's flexibility."

For example, she said, the resolution prevents school districts from raising their income-eligibility guidelines if the cost of living rises.

In addition, her foundation claims that the program has already been hurt because a number of school districts, uncertain about the lunch program's final form, cut back their own spending.

The resolution, passed unanimously by the House and the Senate in the third week of October, was Congress' reaction to a three-month campaign by the Agriculture Department to cut back the program.

Asst. Secretary of Agriculture Richard Lyng said he was looking for a way to make states and school districts pay a larger share of the program, which now costs the government $1.2 billion a year.

Just before schools opened in September, the department announced it would reduce the amount of money it paid for every lunch that schools served free, or at a reduced price, to needy children.

When that provoked protests from Congress and state authorities, the department partially rescinded its cutback.

Instead, the department said that it would limit its payments to free or cut-price lunches given to children whose families earned less than the $3,940 a year that the federal government defines as the poverty line for a family of four.

Because many school districts were getting federal money for meals served under their own, much higher poverty guidelines—up to $9,500 in San Francisco—another wave of protest broke, culminating in the joint resolution.

In effect, the resolution ordered the Agriculture Department to carry on the program at its Oct. 1 level.

Miss Bode is fond of pointing out that two years ago Dr. Jean Mayer, a Harvard nutrition expert then adviser to President Nixon on the problem of hunger, pledged that regardless of the cost, all the nation's needy schoolchildren would get free or cut-price lunches by Thanksgiving 1970.

Today, almost a year after that target date, the American School Food Service Association estimates there are still 5 million needy school children not reached by the program.

"At the moment the pro-lunch forces seem to have won a near total victory, but in this business, victory sometimes seems to be as elusive as a beam of mercury," said Sen. Philip Hart, D-Mich.

Rodney Leonard, a former Agriculture Department official now heading the Community Nutrition Institute in Washington, said debate over the program brought out several new issues.

Congress realized, he said, that the present law "allows the executive branch almost a carte blanche authority to rewrite policy in the guide of implementing congressional mandates."

"What Congress is doing is turning over the primary policy implementation to the states," Leonard said, "trying to build several kinds of restrictions to prevent the Agriculture Department from trying to impose standards on the states."

Lyng said his department is working on a new school lunch law. Asked whether it would be presented to Congress by the end of the current school year in June he said:

"I would hope well before that. But we may not ever get around to it. A lot will depend on whether we can reach some sort of consensus."

Sen. George McGovern, D-S.D., who chairs the Senate nutrition committee, also is working on a new law, much broader in scope than the present one. Cassidy predicted it would leave no options to the department but to provide school lunches for all needy children.

"I believe that next year there will be an opposite attempt to restrict the program to the neediest of the needy," he said, "and that fight, I think, will be a major one."

Educators Granted Awards

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Awards of $10,000 each have gone to 10 college educators in recognition of their imaginative use of teaching techniques.

E. Harris Harbison awards were received by the educators Saturday night at Washington University during a dinner sponsored by the Danforth Foundation of St. Louis.

Each of the winners was selected for "an incredible ability to impart enthusiasm and to teach the very essence of his subject... not merely a gifted teacher, but the most hard working teacher imaginable," Foundation president Merrimon Cunningham said.

The awards were given to William A. Arrowsmith, Boston University; Robert N. Bellah, University of California-Berkeley; Joseph M. Duffy, University of Notre Dame; Clifton M. Grubbs, University of Texas; George S. Hammond, California Institute of Technology; John G. King, Massachusetts Institute of Technology; Freda G. Reblsky, Boston University; Franz Schulze, Lake Forest College; Robert H. Schoebel, Temple University; and Michael Walzer, Harvard University.

To date 75 persons have received the awards, named for the late E. Harris Harbison, professor of history at Princeton University.

The winners are allowed to use the $10,000 award at their own discretion to further their teaching careers. They are chosen annually by panels of educators who make their selections from nominees made by colleagues, past award winners and college or university presidents.

Post-Blast Inspection

Atomic Energy Commission Chairman James Schlesinger, right, and Maj. Gen. Edward B. Giller, make observations on Amchitka Island,

Alaska, after the huge underground nuclear test Saturday. Cracks up to five inches wide and 20 feet long were visible near ground zero of the blast. (UPI)

Scientists Pleased With Blast Results

AMCHITKA ISLAND, Alaska (AP) — A government spokesman says the only initial adverse effects from the Amchitka underground nuclear blast were minor ones. Scientists now look forward to the use of underground blasts elsewhere to tap new sources of natural gas.

Atomic Energy Commission officials said they were pleased with the results of the Amchitka explosion and plan no further nuclear tests on this bleak Aleutian island between the Bering Sea and Pacific Ocean.

It is conceivable, AEC officials say, that a new test of the use of nuclear explosions in the production of natural gas could come as early as late next year near the small mountain community of Rio Blanco, Colo.

Hundreds of similar explosions could follow beneath the hills of Colorado, Wyoming, New Mexico and Utah.

AEC officials also expect that this peaceful use of atomic energy will meet with many of the same protests that met Saturday's Cannikin explosion here, a test of a warhead for the Spartan antiballistic missile.

The AEC said that post-detonation examination of the island has discovered only minimal environmental damage.

The only casualties discovered thus far, the AEC said, were an injured sea otter, several dead birds, a destroyed nesting area and a small freshwater lake.

The otter, the birds and the nesting area—of either bald eagles or peregrine falcons—were apparent victims of massive rock slides touched off by the United States' most powerful underground explosion.

The small lake near ground zero drained away when the nearly 5-megaton blast ripped a crack in the lake bed, the AEC said.

Henry Vermillion, an AEC public affairs officer, stressed that the AEC's findings were incomplete. He said the search for more subtle environmental damage—which the AEC hopes it won't find—will continue for at least a year.

Environmentalists, who fought a losing battle against the test all the way to the U.S. Supreme Court, contended there was a possibility the explosion would touch off natural disasters and inflict severe damage to the environment and wildlife.

The blast gave birth to an earthquake which registered 7 on the Richter scale, but it was felt no further away than an island some 200 miles distant. No seismic sea waves developed. And the AEC said scores of monitoring devices on the finger-shaped island showed no trace of radioactivity.

James R. Schlesinger, AEC

Find Body Of Suspect Near House

FARMINGTON, Mo. (AP) — A hunt for a southeast Missouri man wanted in connection with the deaths of five persons came to an end Saturday when the man's body was found near his home.

The St. Francois County sheriff's office had searched for Eugene Wright, 50, since the bodies of his neighbors and three other persons were found Oct. 28.

Wright had been charged in county warrants with the shooting deaths of Mr. and Mrs. Tracy Parsons. Shortly after the discovery of the Parsons' bodies deputies found the bodies of Alberta Jordan, 61, her brother-in-law Edward Jordan, 70 and her grandson Howard Jordan, 18, in a burned out house nearby.

Coroner Ted Boyer ruled Wright's death a suicide. Wright, who had been shot through the chest with a 12-gauge shotgun, probably had been dead since the day of the killings, authorities said.

The killings apparently involved a dispute over property occupied by the Jordans.
